MOSCOW

Moscow, the county seat of Latah county, is beautifully situated in the midst of one of the most highly productive sections of the great Palouse country. The city has a population, according to the census 1910, of 3,670; Directory estimate 1911, including students, etc., 5,200; a fine artesian city water system, has paved streets and modern sewerage system, electric lighting and water plants. It has three railroads, the Northern Pacific, Oregon-Washington R & N Co, and the Spokane & Inland Empire Electric line. Besides the enjoys educational advantages hard to equal anywhere. Moscow has an excellent public school system and the University of Idaho, the city has a flourishing business college, teaching all branches of commercial work. The Sisters' Ursuline School is also located here. The city's progressiveness is shown by the number of new and important buildings under construction. The progress and enterprise so marked throughout the city is due in a large measure to the united effort of its citizens through its wide-awake Commercial Club. The church societies are many, and include nearly all denominations. All of the usual fraternal societies and the auxiliary orders are represented. Moscow has three strong banks, and all commercial lines are well represented. There are two weekly newspapers, the Star-Mirror and the Idaho Post, and one daily newspaper, the Daily Star-Mirror. Moscow, being the shipping and supply point for the rich surrounding agricultural district, there are many large grain warehouses and three fruit packing establishments. The most important local industry is the Idaho National Harvester Co, whose works cover several acres. The M M Preston Machinery Co also have large shops. Government inspected meat is supplied through the packing and cold storage plant of Hagan & Cushing. The large Roselawn greenhouses furnish cut flowers, plants, shrubs and hot house vegetables. W A Lauder, who has extensive hay and grain warehouses, also owns the largest concrete block factory in Western Idaho. There are several lumber yards and feed mills. The city has been unusually fortunate in securing a variety of good industries. The large federal building for occupancy by the postoffice and other federal offices has just been completed. Other public buildings of interest are the county court house and Carnegie library.

R. L. POLK & CO.'S 1912-13 Lewis County Directory

Miscellaneous Information

Lewis County was created by the eleventh session of the Idaho legislature, and comprises the far famed rich prairie section of old Nez Perce county, with fine timber and large saw mill interests in the western portion. Nezperce, the metropolis, is the county seat.

It is the smallest county in the state and contains about 490 square miles, and the assessed valuation is about $7,000,000. About 80 per cent of the entire county is agricultural land and is either in cultivation or can be when the timber is cleared. It is the richest farming county in the state. The average elevation is about 3,000 feet.

It borders on the Salmon river for a short distance on the southwest corner and is bounded on the east and northeast by the Clearwater river.

It has 37 miles of railroad within its boundaries.

During the season of 1911 more than 3,000,000 bushels of grain was raised in the county.

Nez Perce County Directory

Miscellaneous Information

Nez Perce County is situated in the northwestern portion of the state. It is bounded on the north by Latah County, on the east by the new counties of Clearwater and Lewis, on the south by Lewis and Idaho Counties, and on the west by the Snake river, the boundary line between Idaho and Washington.

The Open River Transportation Co. operates its boat line on the Snake river from Portland to Lewiston, except during time of low water. The Northern Pacific Railway extends to Lewiston from the main line at Marshall Junction, Washington, and a branch line from Lewiston follows the Clearwater to Stites, a distance of 75 miles. The O.-W. R. & N. Railway reaches here from the west through the Snake river canyon. A line jointly constructed by the Northern Pacific and Oregon-Washington Railway & Navigation Company is now completed into Grangeville, penetrating the great grain district of the Nez Perce and Camas prairies and reaching to the very doorway of the great mineral zone of Central Idaho.

In wealth and variety of resources, Nez Perce county is recognized as one of the best in the state, yet many of the resources are in the very infancy of their development. Grain raising, fruit raising, livestock raising, lumbering, mining, dairying and poultry raising are among the important resources and the comparative stage of their development is indicated in the order named. The climate is one of the county's attractive features. The winters are never cold. The thermometer rarely ever reaches zero in Lewiston. The records of the U. S. Weather Bureau covering a period of eight years show an average winter temperature of 37 degrees Fahrenheit, or 5 degrees above freezing, and only three times in that period it fell below zero.

During the same period of time the average rainfall in Lewiston was 13.73 inches, which is exceeded considerably in the higher altitudes. The snowfall is heavy in the eastern and mountainous portion of the state, but snow rarely falls in Lewiston.

ADVERTISING--A GAME OF CHANGE?
Not if you go at it right; let The City Directory do your advertising and your chances for failure are few...

At the present time grain raising is the greatest single resource of the county for the reason that it is farther developed than any other. On its fertile lands thousands of bushels of wheat, oats, barley, flax, etc., are produced annually. It has no superior in quality and readily finds a preferment in the markets.

For quality, variety and amount of fruit that can be raised to the tree or to the acre, the valley lands adjacent to Lewiston have become famous. Fruits of all kinds that grow in the temperate zone are raised in great abundance. Included in this list are apples, peaches, apricots, grapes, cherries, prunes, plums, nectarines, raspberries, dewberries, black berries, gooseberries, strawberries, currants, etc. Of these, apples, peaches, grapes, cherries, apricots and prunes approach perfection. Grapes took the first prize at the St. Louis and Portland Expositions. Such tender nuts as almonds and English walnuts are grown, which shows the mildness of the climate.

Game and fish are some of the attractions of the county. The pleasures of hunting and fishing may be enjoyed at their best by only a few hours' travel from the well-settled districts.

The county has an excellent school system which is progressing rapidly under able management, and all religious denominations are represented by thriving and well organized bodies, thus creating an environment conducive to the best interests of the home and family.

CULDESAC

A thriving town and postoffice on Camas Prairie R R, 22 miles southeast of Lewiston, the county seat. First settled in 1899.

Culdesac enjoys a beautiful climate. The thermometer seldom falls below 20 degrees above zero, and there is scarcely any snow during the winter.

The soil is a black loam, which is inclined to be muddy during rainy weather, but soon dries up and the roads are good most all the year. There can be grown in the vicinity of Culdesac all the tender fruits and vegetables. Within a few miles of Culdesac, which is upon the Craig mountain proper, timothy hay grows to perfection, much of it standing 5 feet high and yielding 4 tons per acre, the same selling from $10 to $14 per ton readily.

Culdesac is a great shipping point; the last few years show that there has been about 350,000 bushels of wheat shipped per annum. Within the last two years there has been about 7,000,000 feet of lumber shipped per annum, besides cattle, hogs and horses that are being shipped all the time.

The city is now on a solid basis and the future growth and prosperity of the same is assured. Northern and Pacific Express, Telephone connection and W U Telegraph. Mail daily.

Asotin County Directory

Miscellaneous Information

Asotin county is located in the extreme southeastern corner of the state of Washington, at the head of navigation on the Snake river, and enjoys the traffic of the Snake, the Salmon, the Grande Ronde and Clearwater rivers, on the short, low, water-grade route between the east and the west. The area of the county is about 640 square miles and its population, U S census, 1910, is 5,831. The southwest portion of the county is wooded and more or less mountainous, and is the source of the numerous streams which water the county. It is exceptionally well adapted to the raising of stock. The bulk of the remainder of the county is generally level, the soil exceedingly fertile, and, particularly where irrigation is practicable, gives splendid results for all classes of crops. Yields of 35 to 45 bushels of wheat and 50 to 70 bushels of barley are not uncommon. There are 80,000 acres of land under cultivation devoted to the raising of fruit, hay, wheat, barley, and oats. Extensive deposits of coal have been discovered in the southwestern part of the county.

In the center of the county, about twelve miles from Asotin, there is a tract of about 4,000 acres at an altitude of 2,300 feet, which under the influence of irrigation is producing the finest quality of winter apples. This tract is known as Cloverland, and the water to irrigate it is taken from the headwaters of George Creek in the Blue mountains.

The death rate is 7 per 1,000. Asthma and malaria are unknown, and the climate is beneficial to all forms of lung trouble. There are no heat prostrations, and no severe storms.

Asotin county's nearest railway connections are at Lewiston, six miles distant from Asotin. There connections are made for Spokane and the east, the Puget Sound region, Portland and Oregon and California points, and Clearwater valley and Nez Perce and Camas Prairie points.
