News Notes From Kendrick School

Student Activities as Told by Special Correspondent

The high school basket ball team regrets very much the loss of Clarence Bell in their line-up. He has been ordered to refrain from violent participation in athletics by Dr. Seeley for a period of four to six weeks. Clarence though not holding a regular position in the line-up proved to be a valuable utility man, always ready to fill a gap in the team. He has improved greatly in handling the ball and will no doubt give some of the first team men a hard tussel for a permanent berth later in the season. Kendrick seems to be visited annually during the basket-ball season by some discouraging handicap, last year it was disjointed ankles, this year injuries of a more serious nature. However, the team and student body has developed a real optimistic, plunging and aggressive attitude and spirit that bears no little attention.

"WATCH KENDRICK WIN" Our motto—why not yours?

Not till late Friday night a Lapwai did the Kendrick H. S. basket ball team feel the fangs of defeat, losing by the close margin of one point, 22 to 23. The locals lost not because of being the inferior of the two teams but principally due to the extremely close guarding of the Lapwai boys. Plainly Lapwai was outclassed in teamwork, passing and shooting for points but their rapid change from a defense to offense and close guarding saved them from a clear defeat. The first half ended in a score of 15 to 14 in favor of the locals, during the third quarter the lead changed from team to team. "Eg" Flaig for Kendrick copped the honors for both teams. A small group of rooters supported the locals in a most pleasing manner. Edgar Dammarrell played his first game this season as forward. To all indications he is a much faster and aggressive player than last year. He, together with "Eg" Flaig, F. Brocke, R. Sparber and W. Brown as safety man will with more drill put up an offensive that will prove a difficult obstacle to overcome by the leaders in the conference. Line-up as follows:

Kendrick	Lapwai
E. Flaig	F. McCormick
Sparber	C. Stewart
Dammarell	F. Wendt
Brown	G. Wright
Brocke	G. White
Sub, H. Flaig.

Referee: Bassler, coach Lewiston high school.

The first and second grades have been busy the past week planning for a program to be given on Friday. They have many decorations to display.

There are twenty-eight in the grammar room. Seventeen in the 8th and eleven in the 7th grade. We are preparing for a game to be played sometime in January. The exact date will be announced later. All the different steps have been taken and from now we will practice the steps taken till the time for the play. We need rooters. Admission free. If you want us to win, come and boost for us while we are practicing. That is your part in the preparation for the game. Have you interest in your children? Then encourage them with your presence. If we lose it will be partly your fault.

Refused Custody of Child

The application of Mrs. E. C. Bostwick of Seattle for modification of her divorce decree from Adolph Wegner of Lewiston, to give her custody of their six year old daughter, Vivian Wegner, was denied in superior court at Spokane, Monday by Judge Blake. The child will remain in the custody of the father. Judge Blake ruled that Mrs. Bostwick's act in deserting Mr. Wegner while he was confined in an Arizona sanatorium and sending the child to relatives while she went to California to seek a movie career under the name of Cleo Jocelyn, places her in the same position as a stranger to the child.

No Community Tree

The Commercial Club has decided that, in view of the fact that the local churches are going to give a Christmas tree here Wednesday evening of next week, the club would give up the idea of a community tree. It was planned at the last meeting of the club to put on a community tree. A committee was appointed to have charge of the affair, but since that time no further action was taken, so the idea has been given up.

tion the 7th and 8th grades will decorate their room, have a small tree, exchange gifts and a social hour, parting with the determination to return after vacation to WIN OUT.

Masons Elect Officers

At a meeting of the Masonic lodge Thursday evening of last week, officers for the ensuing year were elected and installed. Past Master R. F. Pepple had charge of the installation. The following officers were elected and installed: R. D. Newton, W. M.; L. D. Crocker, S. W.; George T. Davison, J. W.; N. M. Talbott, treasurer; E. H. Damarell, secretary; E. A. Deabold, S. D.; Leland Houck, J. D.; H. P. Hull, chaplain; J. L. Woody, marshal; William Freytag, S. S.; M. Nutt, J. S.; N. Brocke, Tyler.

The Weather

Local thermometers registered from 14 to 22 below early Thursday morning. The lowest report was from the local depot, the thermometer there registering 22 below. Whether this is the coldest spot in town or the thermometer is a little inclined to be radical has not definitely been established. Reports from several of the ridges give temperatures of from 20 to 25 below. This is one of the "coldest snaps" that the Potlatch has experienced in 20 years. In 1919 for one night it was probably as cold or possibly colder, but aside from that one time the mercury dropped lower yesterday morning than for 20 years.

At Red Deer, Alberta, a temperature of 62 below zero was reported. A dozen lives were lost because of the cold in various parts of the country.

Killed by Gunshot

Juliaetta, Woodrow, 12-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Levi Groseclose, was accidentally shot and killed in the Little Potlatch canyon near here at 12:30 p. m. Sunday. He was in company with his ten-year-old brother, Jean, when the accident occurred, and the younger lad relates the story that his brother was shot while dragging a double barreled twelve gauge shotgun up over a slight cliff, the trigger catching on a rock as he pulled it up. The body of the boy was first found by Lance Williams and Gus Smith of Lewiston who met the younger boy on the main road between Juliaetta and Arrow, and who told of the shooting of his brother. He directed Messrs. Smith and Williams to the scene of the tragedy a mile and a half up the Little Potlatch and went on home, his father and other relatives arriving after Messrs. Smith and Williams had taken the body from where it was hanging on the edge of the cliff to a bench below.

The boy Jean tells the story that he and his brother took the shotgun along when they went to take a horse to pasture. He says that when they came to the cliff that his brother climbed up first and that he held the gun and handed it up barrel first. He said the gun fired as his brother drew it up over the side of the cliff and that his brother's body toppled off and caught in a crevice half way

A company has been organized at Farmington for the purpose of running a railroad from that point through the Potlatch country either to or near Leland. As yet it is in an embryotic state.

G. M. Lewis made a business trip to Moscow, Monday.

H. E. Wessels this week sold the Bostwick place of 40 acres, a splendid piece of land situated half way between Cameron and Southwick, to M. H. Groseclose of the Caldwell valley. The purchase price was $1250.

Al McKee left Wednesday for the Ampton flats country where he has decided to range his herd of cattle, also the bank's herd will be with them. This is an experiment that will be watched with interest.

A. W. Gordon has severed his connection with the Kendrick State Bank. It is his intention in the near future to visit the Masonic lodges in the state in his official capacity as Grand Master of Idaho.

For the sum of $11 the old hose cart was made as good as new, thus saving the town some $140. The work was done by Wm. Hunter and Frank Crocker.

The members of the Juliaetta band have received their new uniforms which are tasty and attractive.

The N. Tery Gas & Carbide Co. asked the City Council for a franchise and we judge the same will be granted. Mr. Tery has demonstrated the success of the light and also its cheapness. From indications we judge the franchise will be granted and ere long the town lighted by modern methods, as acetylene gas is the best yet placed on the market.

An inquest was held here last Friday morning over the remains of James Reid by County Coroner L. D. Jameson. The verdict was that he had come to his death by the accidental burning of his home on his farm near Clyde spur. The jury consisted of E. P. Atchison, R. E. James, Wm. Kelly, H. E. Wessels, C. F. Cole, and F. M. Crandall.

The Weber dairy is a thing of the past. Last Friday word was given the patrons that after Sunday morning no more milk would be delivered. No explanation was given and the Gazette reported gleans the following as the probable cause of such action. Mr. H. W. Weber, the proprietor, being heavily involved financially and seeing better prospects elsewhere, left for Alta, Canada, and creditors have taken possession of the assets.

Rod Drury has received the appointment of door keeper in the legislative house.

The Rathbone Sisters held their semi-monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. A. W. Gordon.

State and county taxes will be delinquent unless paid this week.

The charge from the gun struck the unfortunate boy on the neck and side of the head, mauling it badly. The body was brought to Juliaetta.

The Groseclose home is on the Juliaetta-Arrow road about five miles below Juliaetta.

Theo. Glomb met with a painful accident last Saturday. With Victor Anderson he was moving wood from a shed at the rear of the store so the shed could be moved away.

Both were engaged in throwing wood through the door when Ted was called outside for something.

As he was re-entering the shed to resume work, a stick of wood that had just been thrown by Victor struck him on the mouth knocking out a bridged tooth and the two teeth to which it was anchored and cutting his upper lip quite badly.—Deary Press.

A public skating place will be put in on the lots where the Duthie barn burned down. Quite a number were at work Saturday preparing the place to receive water. So far the weather has been too warm to freeze the water and the matter is at a standstill until colder weather sets in.—Troy News.

Reports are current that two fine local farms sold last week. It is understood that the Adam Schlee farm has been purchased by the McKay Bros. This is a very fine farm of 1000 to 1500 acres and lies almost level.

The other was the L. J. Ailor place of 240 acres. It is better known as the old Paul Fuchs farm. It lies only two miles southwest of Uniontown. It is also considered a very choice farm. Martin Mochrley is the new owner.

Button and Shirrod of Uniontown who started to sell farm lands only two weeks ago, handled both deals—representing both buyers and seller in each case. They decline to give any facts or even comment on the deals, assuring us they will give us the facts in a later issue.

Mr. Shirrod did say however that both buyers were secured through local advertising. He has spent a number of years in both the east and west in advertising and selling and is an enthusiastic booster for local newspaper advertising. There two weeks results certainly prove that it pays.—Genesee News.

Death of President Elliott

President Oliver M. Elliott of the Lewiston State Normal passed away at the White hospital at Lewiston, Monday morning, where he underwent an operation a week before for appendicitis and strangulated hernia.

President Elliott came to the Lewiston Normal from Salem, Oregon, in 1916, where he was city superintendent of schools. He was prominent in educational circles of the northwest and was an active member of the Inland Empire Teachers' Association.

He is survived by Mrs. Elliott, a son, Dana, of Spokane, and a daughter, Mrs. D. D. Dodson of Sidney, Mont.

The funeral was conducted Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The remains were shipped to Spokane for cremation.

The local post of the American Legion is announcing a dance to be held at the Fraternal Temple New Year's night. This will be the first Legion dance held here this winter.

DeLAVAL Cream Separators

The De Laval Centrifugal Cream Separator constitutes the best-known method of separating cream from milk—the most complete, most quickly, most easily and most cheaply-producing cream and skim milk in the best condition for utilization. This is a strong statement but investigation will convince you.

—Leader in every important improvement since the invention of the first continuous centrifugal separator by Dr. De Laval in 1878. Any variations in the making of cream separators mean that some patent originally filed and held by the DeLaval Separator Co. has expired or been released by them.

—Over 2,500,000 separators in actual use the world over.

—Nearly as many DeLaval Cream Separators in use as all other makes put together.

DeLaval Separators carry the endorsement, recommendation and the use by Government Experiment Stations, colleges, dairy authorities and leading dairymen everywhere.

—Practically every creamery man uses a DeLaval power separator.

—Finally, butter made from DeLaval-separated cream has won first prize at every meeting of the National Buttermakers' Association since 1892. Why?

The DeLaval Guarantee

DeLaval Cream Separators are guaranteed to be as represented and to fulfill all claims made for them, being sold subject to the guarantee of their unqualified superiority in every material feature of separator practicability, inclusive of the production of a greater value of cream and of a greater quantity of butter of better quality than is possible through the use of any other separator or creaming system.

Her Christmas Wedding

By Emily Burks Adams

(©, 1924, Western Newspaper Union.)

R A N D M O T H E R, tell us a real Christmas story—one you really experienced. Tell us the very best Christmas you ever had—

Julia and Juanita, grandmother's adored granddaughters, settled themselves, for, to them, no one could tell stories equal to grandma.

"All right, girls, that won't be hard. The very best Christmas I ever had was my wedding day. I was married on Christmas day and the most precious gift I ever received was your grandfather."

"Well, it was like this: Our Christmases and weddings were very different from now. My wedding dress was a pretty calico, the first I ever had, and cost one dollar a yard. Up to this time I had worn woolsey, we called them, and I spun and wove it. My mother was afraid I'd take cold, so I had to wear my calico over the wool one. We didn't have hope boxes then—we had hopes, though. It was a disgrace for a girl to marry and not possess a feather bed and some quilts and a pair of home-made blankets. I had all these, to be sure."

"My worst worry was for fear Peg's cakes would be flat, for she had a habit of spilling cakes by making them too rich, when she wanted them especially good. I, too, wanted the plum pudding just so, and the turkeys properly cooked—in case we got any—for my father had to go to the woods and kill wild turkey."

"Oh! grandma, how thrilling! Did you get a turkey?"

"Yes, your grandfather came in with six. Peg cooked four, for we were expecting all the kinfolks from both sides of the house. This was the day before, and our kinfolks began coming that evening, for some lived ten miles and it was too far for the oxen to make the trip in time next morning. Oh, yes, we drove oxen—and I much prefer them to these human-killing automobiles of today."

Both Julia and Juanita laughed. "Oh, do go on, grandma!"

"Well, we were to be married at high noon Christmas day, so by ten o'clock Christmas Eve our feather beds were full. We didn't try to put more than six in one bed—three at the head and three at the foot—beds were made on the floor all over the house, and we slept as soundly as you on your fine box springs of today, and nothing disturbed us only an occasional snore, and that wasn't half as bothersome as the sputtering of these flying machines.

"Well, the next day dawned fair, and I think everybody said 'Happy is the bride the sun shines on.' Peg assured me the cakes were fine and turkeys tender. The great, long table was 'set' and we were married under a bough of mistletoe—and your grandfather kissed me for the first time. I'm sure no girl of today can say that. Everybody shook my hand and wished me much joy and we all went to dinner. Your grandfather and I ate at the first table; most of the women waited, for in those times the men always ate first. I suppose it was proper then; anyway, they did.

"The next day we drove over to your grandpa's home for the infare, and had another big dinner, and I had a cheaper calico. I called it my second-day dress. We visited my folks and his folks about a week and then took our belongings in an ox-cart to our home, four miles away—a one-room log house built by grandpa. Your mother was born there.

"That was a great Christmas, and we were happier in one room than those in mansions today."

"Oh, that was a great day! Yes, it was truly Christ's day and Christ's way. The same Savior reigned then as now, and he has the same message—I go to prepare a place for you, that where I am there ye may be also."

"Good night, girls, grandma must retire. Tomorrow is Christmas day, but sixty-seven years ago I received a gift better than any I'll get tomorrow. I'll be with father before another Christmas rolls around and there'll be another great Christmas and the same Christ will reign. Good night, dears."

A Christmas Prayer

By ANNA LOUISE STRONG
in Life and Light

SWEET Child of Peace, across the ancient strife
Bringing glad melody of angel psalm,
Our hearts are restless with the care of life—
O, bring to us Thy calm!

Dear Lord of Love, the world is waiting still
The high achievement of Thy gracious plan;
O, grant us Thine all-conquering good will,
Thy loving faith in man!

Master of Death, Thy greatest gift is yet—
To know Thy sacrifice, to share Thy loss,
Lest in the mirth of Christmas we forget
The glory of the Cross.

Celebrating Christmas

By ANNA DEMING GRAY

(©, 1924, Western Newspaper Union.)

WE SHALL have to go farther back than the Christian era to find the source of Christmas celebration, for we borrowed it from the nations existing long before the coming of the Christ Child.

Christmas came from early Egyptian civilization, from the Teutonic barbarians, or the pagan Greek and Roman nations—or perhaps from all of them. But in the days of the early Christians Christmas ceased to be observed merely as a day of merrymaking and feasting. They celebrated it as a day of good will and kindness, the bestowing of gifts, and a time of peace, but they considered it a holy festival and too filled with solemnity and sacred joy to be made a time of hilarity and boisterous jollity.

That the very date is uncertain makes little real difference. In those early days of the Christians they thought it following the heathenish customs to observe birthdays. We cannot wonder at this when we remember that every god and goddess, every noted man, and every animal considered sacred, must each have a special day of feasting and festivity. It is not strange that they should have come to a time when they put the whole custom aside, and celebrated none at all, not even the birthday of the Child of Bethlehem.

It was not until four hundred years later, not until Christianity had triumphed and become a recognized factor in the world that they even began to question the real date of Christ's birth.

The Western empire had accepted December 25 as the date, and the Eastern churches celebrated January 6, while other dates from September 20 to May 20 were observed, and each of these with some good reason for its selection. It was Pope Julius who finally settled the controversy by accepting the ruling of the Western church and established December 25, and by the middle of the Fourth century this date was generally recognized. In the pagan nations this had been the time when a festival of joy took place, because it was then that the sun was supposed to begin to recede from the equator.

They celebrated the 21st of December by all manner of licentious revels and heathen debauchery, and even after the coming of Christianity it was centuries before these pagan customs and practices were eliminated. And it was not until after the Middle Ages that the meaning and the significance of the season began to dawn upon the minds and hearts of men.

In old England Christmas became a time of feasting, drinking and hilarious merrymaking—not a very advanced conception, but a step beyond the pagan idea. Later the spirit of Puritanism began to influence English customs and public zeal ran so high that all gaiety and all festivity came to be considered sinful.

All observances of special days were declared designed by the "devil," and the famous Roundhead parliament set aside the celebration of Christmas, Easter and Whitsuntide.

For twelve years no special days were observed in England, and when they were once more taken back into favor the result was what might have been expected, for the Christmas season became a time of feasting, drinking, dancing and wild revel, lasting for twelve days and nights. The lord of misrule came into existence—this was the chosen master of festivities, into whose hands the keys of the house were given and whose word was law while the revel lasted. The days and nights were full of "all manner of hilarity, and a most wild and merrie time was had," we are told.

At first only the royal households had these lords of misrule, but the custom spread until almost every household had its ruler of the season's revels. But gradually, as time passed, these wild celebrations gave place to festivals none the less joyous, but more befitting the season.

The ceremony of bringing in the Yule log was observed, of decorating the house with holly and mistletoe, the lighted candle in the window, and the midnight singing of carols.

Still later Christmas became a day marked by bountiful dinners given to the poor by rich landowners, rather than merely a time of feasting and merrymaking.

And slowly the real Christmas spirit is coming more and more into the hearts of humanity, as we grow each year to better understand the song the angels sang that starlit night on the Judean hills. And "on earth, peace, good will to men," means more with each recurring year as we open our hearts to the Child of Bethlehem.

Purebred cattle are 48 per cent more efficient producers than scrubs, says the United States department of Agriculture.

Farm Hints

Cut out and burn all corn stalks infected with smut.

Plant alfalfa only on well prepared seedbed with 30 pounds of inoculated seed.

More ton-litter sows will bring the production of pork back into the profitable class of agricultural activities.

Broodiness is inherited and can be reduced by not breeding from the hens which are broody more than once in a year.

Feed the calves enough, but don't overfeed them. They will do better if kept just a little hungry. Overfeeding causes digestive troubles.

Solemnly, pleadingly, church bells are ringing
To us a message across the white snow,
Tenderly, lovingly, to us are bringing
Edgings that first were brought ages ago,
Edgings that make men's hearts
Soften and glow
As on that Christmas day
Ages ago.

Joyfully, tenderly, church bells are ringing
To us their greetings across the deep snow, Bringing fresh hope to the hearts that are climbing
Upward in search of that feeling of glow,
Such as the shepherds felt
Ages ago,
When they were called by the Star's tender glow.

Brought to Him

Back to His Old Job, the Present Walter Manners Needed Most

His Cup Was Full to Overflowing With Yuletide Joy

For twenty years of service to old Clarkson, twenty years wherein he had given the best that was in him to a man who was reputed to be the most ill-tempered man in all Washburn—he had just been told that from now on his services would be dispensed with, and all because of a small mistake that had been made, which Clarkson in the blind rage which had taken hold of him, had laid on the shoulders of Manners.

It was hard, he told himself as he walked along, that a man who had given the best of his life in service could be cast away like an old glove. It must be that he was not as competent as other men, he told himself. For the hurt of dismissal had sunk its iron deeper into Walter Manners' soul than it would have done in the case of another man, for always he had been possessed of the feeling that he was not quite as capable as other men. Something within him always tried to belittle him to himself, and although he had often fought with this feeling and had tried to assure himself that he did as good or even better work than some, in spite of himself it came every now and then to torture him. Now, in the face of his recent dismissal, it came with added force, and he told himself over and over again that he was a failure or else old Clarkson would not have let him out. He never stopped to think that perhaps it was the long association with a man of Clarkson's type that had made him so diffident about his own worth.

He dreaded the thought of going home and telling his family the bad news. He reproached himself that he had not broken away from old Clarkson ten years before when he had an offer from young Peters, who had just then come to Washburn, and who had since made such a success. But then, as always, the fear of himself kept him from accepting and he had stayed on and borne the ill-temper of old man Clarkson since. His forty-five years hung heavily upon him as he went on and he looked with dread to the future, for his family was just at the age when a steady income was an absolute necessity.

He shuddered now as he thought of Christmas, when only a few hours ago he had been living in happy anticipation of the day. He had planned so many things; so many little surprises that would bring joy to his loved ones; but now that was all over, for how could he enter into the spirit of Christmas, weighed down with care and dread of the future as he was now?

Walter Manners had always been a man who set a great stress upon duty, and as he went along now the thought came to him that a real duty to his family lay before him. For he felt that he would be inflicting a great wrong upon them were he to go to them now with the story of his failure and to spoil their Christmas. What of his own feelings—surely he could be man enough to hide them for a few days for the sake of those he loved! After Christmas there would be time enough to tell them the dread news—to let them know what a miserable failure he was.

He decided then that he would not go home until his usual homecoming hour, lest it might create suspicion, so to kill time he wandered aimlessly around town. He stopped to gaze in Peters' window as he passed. He admitted to himself that there was a vast difference between the appearance of this store and Clarkson's. Here everything was up-to-date and attractive; the window arrangement such as might make anyone pause to look. Once he had bronched this subject to old Clarkson, but had been met by such an outburst of wrath that he had never dared to open the subject again.

So engrossed was he with his thoughts that he never noticed that Clyde Peters was standing inside the window and gazing straight at him. He flushed a dull red again as the thought came to him that surely Peters would suspect something to see him wandering aimlessly around at what was usually the busiest time of the day at Clarkson's. But he nodded as pleasantly as he could to Peters and walked on.

Somehow he got through the evening without his family suspecting that there was anything amiss. He joined in the general gaiety and helped with the decorations and various other little jobs, but all the while the heart within him was sick with misery. But he knew that the burden was his to bear alone, and the thought that he was saving his family from the truth for a few days gave him a little feeling of comfort.

At ten o'clock, after the smallest of the children had been put to bed and the Christmas tree had received all its trimmings, the door bell rang with a loud peal. Walter Manners opened it, thinking it was a neighbor or possibly a Christmas gift of some kind, but instead the tall figure of Peters stood in the doorway.

In a few minutes he told what he wanted—seeing Manners standing outside his store that afternoon and suspecting from his attitude that something was wrong, he had made inquiries and found he had left Clarkson's. Whereupon he had come to ask him if he would consider a position with him, and when he named the salary Walter Manners gasped, as it was nearly twice the figure he had been getting. And when, because of his high sense of duty that was his, he told Peters that Clarkson had let him out, Peters only laughed aloud and said: "As if that would make any difference. The wonder to all in Washburn has been how you could have stood him so long."

After that it did not take Walter Manners long to give consent to the offer, and his cup of joy seemed full as he bled good-night and good wishes to Peters at the door.

But it was full to overflowing a few minutes later when old Clarkson came puffing to the door and told him he could have his old job back again, with a small increase in salary. For although he never wanted to see Clarkson's store again, yet the feeling that he was wanted back in the old place, added to the offer which he had just accepted, gave him the confidence in himself which he had always been lacking, and that Christmas Walter Manners really came into his own, he had gotten the gift which he needed most of all.

CHRISTMAS

By Mary Graham Bonner

(© 1924, Western Newspaper Union.)

FOR YEARS he had been funny. For years he had painted his face, worn funny clothes and had made jokes.

He had traveled first of all in this country with a road circus. Then, when the road circus was going out of business, more or less, he joined a road circus abroad.

And now he was very old. But every afternoon and every night for ten months of the year he made jokes. He was in a small circus, too, so sometimes he had to take other parts.

The performing fox terriers acted with him. They were his pets. And how he loved them. How could some people be unkind to their pets?

Not the old clown. There was the donkey, too. When he paid too much attention to the dogs the donkey came along and gave him a push to tell him that the donkey, too, wanted some attention.

And now he had planned to have a holiday. A long holiday. He would take a little place and with his donkey and his fox terriers they would rest after their work.

They would not join the circus another year. They were all old.

How tired he had become after some of the performances that year. He had washed his face in the basin of cold water outside his wagon and had not even bothered to get off all the makeup.

The water was cold. It was hard to heat water after the performance was over, and only a little of the paint came off—only a little cold-looking pink water was at the bottom of the basin.

But the dogs didn't mind. They slept on the end or by the side of his cot in his wagon. They jumped in after him each evening, and they each kissed him good night. They didn't mind paint. They were used to it.

Oh, yes, he would take a long, long holiday. He would rest on the little he had managed to save. It would be enough for him and his pets.

But as the days passed along he seemed to feel rested and the pets seemed to have new vigor and strength. It was splendid to feel rested again. A family had invited him to Christmas dinner—and he had accepted and he had asked, too, if he could come with his donkey and bring his dogs along. They, he said, would help put on a little show for the children.

It was all agreed. But when Christmas afternoon came and the Christmas dinner was over, and the old clown was beginning his show for the children, he knew then that he could never take more than a few months' holiday from being a clown.

The laughter and the delight and the shrieks and the cries of joy from the children were things the old clown could not get along without.

This Christmas had shown him that!

Immature Crops Are Not Good for Making Silage

Every silo should be filled, because silage is the cheapest feed this year. Good silage cannot be made from immature crops. Corn and the sorghums, when approaching maturity, make silage of the best quality. Fully matured and frosted crops make good silage if plenty of water is added. In any case, the finer the feed is cut the better will be the quality of the silage. Silage should be packed thoroughly in the silo, especially around the edges. The faster a silo is filled the more tramping and packing is necessary.

To Our Friends And Their Friends!

It is only natural at this time that we should look back upon the pleasant and cordial relations which have existed between the Kendrick State Bank and its many loyal friends and customers during the past year.

And with the thoughts of the past year are mingled hopes that the future may add its share to the fund of heart warming experiences and transactions that strengthen the bonds of friendship.

To our friends and their friends—to our folks at home and those of you who are far away—to you and yours, we wish the fullest measure of the seasons greeting.

May the New Year be a prosperous one; may joy and happiness come to you; and may it be the privilege of this bank to add to your success.

The Song of Christmas

By JAMES WHITCOMB RILEY

CHANT me a rhyme of Christmas—
And though it is filled with laughter, let it be pure and strong.

Sing of the hearts brimmed over with the story of the day—
Of the echo of childish voices that will not die away.

Of the blare of the tasseled bugle, and of the timeless clatter and beat
Of the drum that throbs to muster squadrons of scampering feet.

But, O, let your voice fall fainter, till,
blent with a minor tone,
You temper your song with the beauty of the pity Christ has shown.

And sing one verse for the voiceless;
and yet ere the song be done,
A verse for the ears that hear not,
and a verse for the sightless one.

For though it be time for singing a merry Christmas glee,
Let a low, sweet voice of pathos run through the melody.

The DAIRY

DAIRY BULL NEEDS EXTRA GOOD CARE

A little special care should be used in the feeding and general management of the dairy herd sire, in order to maintain his stamina and potency to the fullest degree. In the case of the mature bull this necessitates keeping him in first-class condition as to flesh, but not overfat. Either fatness or thinness in flesh works against the maintenance of his best breeding condition and one is to be avoided as much as the other.

There should be an abundance of roughage in the dairy bull's ration. Clover hay and alfalfa are especially good; he may safely have all of either of these forages that he will consume. Corn stover and oats straw also are good feeds for the bull, though lower in nutritive values than the leguminous hays.

One of the main special requirements of the grain ration is that it be not too abundant; it is better to depend upon the forages for maintaining the animal's weight as much as possible. Many good dairymen give the herd sire the same grain ration as the cows receive, except less of it. The bull's grain needs will vary a great deal according to his size and physical condition, of course, though if he is getting plenty of good hay in addition, especially if it is clover or alfalfa, he will not need more than from four to eight pounds of grain daily. Shorts, bran and oats are particularly good concentrates to use in the grain portion of the bull's ration.

Here is a ration for mature bulls which has the sanction of usage on many farms: Three parts each of cornmeal, ground oats and wheat bran, and one part linseed meal. If desired, hominy may be substituted for the cornmeal.

Whether the herd sire should receive silage is a disputed point among dairymen. Many believe that it impairs the breeding abilities of the bull, though experimental evidence to support this belief is lacking. Other breeders safely feed silage to their herd bulls, though much less of it than the cows receive. Large feeding of silage to bulls results in greatly distending their paunches.

Until he reaches serviceable age there is no better feed for the young bull than grass, and he should be allowed to make as much of his growth on it as possible. On this feed he will build up the right kind of flesh, and along with it will develop vigor and constitution as he would in no other way. Whatever the ration of the young bull, it should contain much protein to supply the needs of his rapidly growing body.

While careful attention needs to be given the bull's ration, proper feeding alone will not maintain the most desirable physical condition. Regular exercise is quite as important in preserving his vigor and potency.

How Expression Started

"The greater the crime the higher the gallows," was at one time a practical legal maxim in English common law. In 1838 Patrick McGregor, alias Gilderoy, a notorious robber, was hanged at Edinburgh on a gallows so high that his body "looked like a kite in the clouds." Tradition says the gallows were 30 feet high. The expression "higher than Gilderoy's kite" is an allusion to this famous hanging. It means very high.

The Agricultural Census

Idaho has been divide into three districts for the agriculture census of the department of commerce, with 242 enumerators in the field, according to a bulletin from department headquarters. Field forces of the forest service, crop statistics division, bureau of markets of the department of agriculture and the reclamation bureau of the department of the interior are assisting in the work.

There were 42,126 farms in the state at the time of the last farm census, in 1920, the department reports.

The extent to which farm operators used the purchasing and selling facilities of farmers' organizations will be brought out by two inquiries; one calling for the value of products of the farm sold through a farmers' marketing organization, and the other calling for the value of all farm supplies purchased from or through a farmers' organization. An additional line to marketing conditions will be brought out by answers to inquiries as to the kind of road adjoining the farm, gravel, improved dirt, or unimproved, dirt, and the distance to the nearest market town. Through inquiries of this character the census seeks to secure information relative to conditions upon which, to a considerable degree, the success of farm operation depends.

THE BILLBOARD BOOMRANG

An editor and a merchant were discussing the virtue of billboard advertising. The merchant contended that more people read the billboard than the newspapers. After a lengthy conversation in which neither man would give in, the men parted.

The next week the merchant came tearing down the street to the newspaper office wanting to know why the obituary of his wife's mother was not in the paper, especially after he had seen that a copy was taken to the newspaper office. "Well," said the editor, "I know you wanted the obituary read by the people so I took it out and nailed it up on your billboard." —Ex.

Charles W. McKeever of Coeur d'Alene visited his son, Dr. McKeever, between trains Monday morning. He was on his way home from a brief visit with the John Florence family at Clarkston. His daughter-in-law, Mrs. Harry McKeever was also visiting there. Her home is at Pocatello where Harry has a position with the Mutual Creamery Co.

W. M. Duthie, formerly of Troy, has purchased the feed and poultry supply department of the Pure Seed Co. of Lewiston. He will handle hay, grain, poultry supplies and produce.

Robbers entered the Clark Drug Store at Genesee the first of the week and got away with about $20 in cash and a few small articles. The robbery was discovered when the store was opened Monday morning for business. The Latah county sheriff's force is working on the case.

W. M. McCrea was a Moscow visitor Sunday.

Kendrick is a good place to do your Christmas shopping. The stores have a big selection of gifts to choose from. Don't wait too long.

Walter Thomas left Monday afternoon for a week's business trip to Seattle and other coast points.

Rev. Vicker will hold services in the local Presbyterian Church Sunday morning at the usual hour.

The Presbyterian Ladies Aid will serve a dinner at noon at John's Confectionery tomorrow, Saturday. There will also be a fancy work and rummage sale. Mr. Halseth generously offered the use of his store for the sale and dinner.

M. V. Thomas was a Lewiston visitor the first of the week.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Spencer of Moscow arrived on the night train Friday to attend the dance given at the Fraternal Temple.

Most of the wheat in this locality is sold, so a high price at this time doesn't benefit the farmers to any great extent.

Mrs. John Halseth and Mrs. L. E. Pearson were Moscow visitors, Tuesday afternoon.

Mrs. John W. Phillips of Lewiston arrived Tuesday afternoon to visit her daughter, Mrs. Harold Thomas.

Roy Plummer returned Tuesday from a business trip to Lewiston.

Mr. and Mrs. John Mathes of Bovill were Kendrick visitors the first of the week.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Snyder and little daughter returned Saturday, after a visit in Lewiston.

George Fitzpatrick of Seattle arrived Saturday to visit at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Seeley. He is a radio operator on a passenger steamer between Seattle and the Orient.

A good time was reported at the dance given last Friday by the Kendrick Dancing Club. The attendance was small but the dance was an enjoyable one. Lunch was served at midnight at John's Confectionery.

The Methodist and Presbyterian churches will have a Christmas tree and program together at the Methodist church Christmas eve. Committees from both churches are getting up a program and arranging for the financing of the tree. Donations will be secured from the business men of the town to defray the cost of the tree.

There will be a Christmas tree and program at the American ridge school house, Tuesday evening, December 23. Everybody is invited to attend.

Herbert Jones, who has held a position with the Kendrick State Bank for the past year, left Wednesday morning for Spokane. From there he will go to his home on the coast for a vacation and then plans to spend the balance of the winter in California.

Four local sportsmen staged a really successful duck hunt last Tuesday. They left Kendrick before daylight, drove down the Potlatch several miles below Juliaetta and hunted along the creek as far as Arrow Junction. They returned about dark with 28 ducks, all mallards but one. They ran out of ammunition or would probably have had more. Joe Gardner shot three on the wing at one shot. The quartet consisted of Ted Deobald, Melvin Morley, Ben Cummings and Joe Gardner.

Stivers, quarterback and Vesser, end, on the Idaho football team have been selected by sport writers for places on the All-American second team. Stivers is said to be the best quarterback in the West.

The North Idaho Chamber of Commerce, which met at Moscow last Friday and Saturday, voted to hold its next meeting at Orofino some time next summer.

Conservative thermometers registered four below zero in Kendrick Wednesday morning. An American ridge reports are from 7 to 11 below. No damage done in this section except to water pipes.

According to a little booklet issued by the Lewiston normal, Idaho has the best educational system in the United States. This is taking in a pretty big territory but we hope the statement is true. If it is true there is plenty of room for improvement in the other states.

The Kendrick Garage Co. perfected a mechanical toy for their show window that has created considerable interest. A casual observance might lead one to suppose that the question of perpetual motion has at last been solved. Seven steel balls about an inch in diameter are kept in perpetual motion around an elevated track. It is a continuous performance and the toy will operate all day without any attention. Herman Schupfer and Ted Deobald invented it.

If you don't think Christmas is on the way, come down and look at the show windows in the Kendrick stores. They present a most festive appearance.

Tonight and Saturday

This picture portrays, with stunning blows of relentless drama, the younger generation of today being carried to a land of chaos on a scarlet tidal wave of jazz, joy and recklessness. It plumbs the very depths of a modern youth's soul—the thrill-requiring, sensation-seeking, thoughtless youth who never thinks of consequences until it's time to pay the penalty.

See this inspiring and prophetic screen drama! Study it! Drink it deep into your heart and soul!
