Leland School Notes
Because of so many scheduled events for Friday evening, December 20th, we have advanced the date of our Christmas program to Thursday, night, Dec. 19th. It is scheduled to start promptly at 7:30. We have chosen three short playlets to present in addition to the choral part of the program. They are: "The First Christmas Tree," "The Little Fir" and "Sing a Song of Christmas."

We greatly appreciate the interest shown by the Messrs. Gordon Peters, Herman Meyer, Fred Glenn and Harold Parks, who have been working like beavers the past few days constructing for us a new stage. It is being built so that it can be folded against the wall of the gymnasium when not in use. It will mean a great saving of time and labor to the students, when it is necessary for us to use the stage, besides being much safer than the old one, which had to be built up and taken down section-by-section.

Glynis Thornton, Kathleen Crawford, Charles Parks and Stanley Smith have been named to collect money for the Christmas treats.

Mrs. Fred Glenn visited in the Primary and Intermediate rooms Friday morning.

Mrs. Jungert spent the week-end in Lewiston.

The students have been busy the past week selling Christmas seals. To date they have disposed of all sent to us, and have ordered more.

The films shown this week were "The Barvarian Alps" and "What Electricity Has Done for the Farm."

The "Teachergage" is receiving a new coat of paint.

Students have been devoting their art periods the past week to making room decorations appropriate for the Christmas season — Santas, sleighs,

SIXTY-EIGHT SIT DOWN TO COMMERCIAL CLUB DINNER

Sixty-eight Commercial Club members, wives and guests sat down to a delicious 6:30 dinner at White's Confectionery last Monday evening, and following the meal, adjourned to the basement of the Community church, where a short business session, followed by a program, was held. G. F. Brooke, vice president, presiding over the business meeting in the absence of L. S. Thurber, chairman.

Following the reading of the Minutes of the previous meeting, J. G. Travis of the Real Estate committee reported that three owners of good building lots had been contacted. One of these said he would sell to the highest bidder; another would sell, but declined to place a valuation on his lots; the third sold to Mr. Travis with the request that it be sold to an ex-service man.

The matter of the annual Christmas tree and treats was then brought up, and on vote the date was set for the Saturday before Christmas—Saturday, December 21, at 2:30 p. m., at which time a short program will be held and Santa arrive with treats for the children. It is not likely that candy will be available, but the treats will be there just the same!

Mr. Brooke then introduced Jasper Nutting, local superintendent of schools. Mr. Nutting declined an invitation to speak, stating that as this was his first meeting, he preferred to listen.

The meeting was then turned over to Tom Keene, chairman of the entertainment committee, who introduced the performers.

First on the program was a piano solo, "The Blue Danube," by Dick Coulter.

Next came a vocal solo by Wilma Benscoter, "Strolling In The Park," accompanied by Dick Coulter. Wilma was in suitable costume, which added "flavor."

Marybeth Benscoter and Dorothy Thornton then appeared in a black-face skit, singing "Darktown Strutters Ball."

Next, "Daisy Belle" was sung and tap danced by Louella Forest and Wilma Benscoter.

During the intermission for costume change Dick Coulter played as a piano solo "The Dancing Doll."

Again came a blackface skit, in costume, entitled "I've Been Working On The Railroad," with Marybeth Benscoter and Dorothy Thornton taking part. In this skit a "murder" was committed in an umber, candle room. All attempts to tap the mystery failed until "The Whistler" was called in. It took him but a moment to reach his decision: "Kilroy Was Here!"

The entire cast then sang "White Christmas," accompanied by Dick Coulter.

The evening closed with a group song, "God Bless America."

All voted it one of the most pleasant meetings in a long, long time.

Cpl. Wallace Newman Coming

Chong-Lu, Korea

Dear Mac and Bill:
This is just a few lines to tell you to discontinue sending the Kendrick Gazette. I wish to express my sincere thanks to everyone who has made it possible for me to receive the paper during my service in the army. Each and every copy was really enjoyed.

At times I would be "a little bit late" in arriving but it always contained a lot of good home town news when it did arrive.

I should be on my home within the next few weeks. I have my hopes pretty high (maybe) that I can get home for Christmas.

Thanks again for sending the paper, and I wish you and all the home town folks a very Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

As ever
Wally Newman.

reindeer, poinsettias and similar decorations are daily being displayed to add to the beauty and joy.

Work in plaster of paris and textile painting is being done.

We hope to have our Christmas tree up by next week, so that it may be suitably adorned for the Christmas season.

High Cost Of OPA Revealed

Washington, D. C. — The Boise district office of OPA may have been a bane to some Idahoans, but it was a boon of more than $300,000 annually to the 84 employees on its payroll.

This eye-opening example of the high cost of federal bureaucracy was revealed in a survey just completed by Senator Henry Dworshak (R-Idaho). Elected to fill the unexpired term of the late Senator John Thomas, Dworshak took office as senator last month after serving for eight years as congressman from Idaho's second district.

The newly elected senator obtained his information from a special assistant of OPA Administrator Paul Porter, although he said that the agency at first refused to divulge any payroll information.

"Apparently these bureaucrats think the taxpayers have no right to know how their money is spent," Dworshak declared.

Other interesting facts concerning the recently-disbanded Boise OPA office, according to Senator Dworshak, are:

Total annual payroll, $303,533. Director's salary, $7,102 annually, or on $398.00 less than Idaho's governor receives.

Thirty-eight of the 84 employees were each paid more than $4,000 annually. Top pay of Idaho's elected state officers, other than the governor, is $4,000 a year. A feminine district "information executive" or press agent, received a salary of $4,902.00 a year! — Clearwater Tribune, Orofino.

Sliding Mountain Plagues N. P.

Bane of the Northern Pacific Railroad in this area is the "sliding mountain" about three miles above Kendrick. This hillside, in a burned over section, insists on sliding, sliding and sliding some more!

Of a sandy soil, and full of "wet-weather springs" the hillside insists on sliding down upon the tracks of the N. P. Not once, but time after time has this occurred — so often, in fact, that the railroad company now keeps a work train stationed here a large percentage of the time, with someone always stationed at the slide site with flares and other equipment, to warn trains and the track patrol.

This situation has cost the company many thousands of dollars — and just what can be done about it still remains an unsolved problem.

It is worth anyone's while to walk up the tracks and see this sight. Elmo Eldridge, local section foreman, says he wishes it were possible to take passengers on the speeder, but regulations forbid, so please don't feel bad if he "passes you up."

Undergoes Surgery

Mrs. Clifford Davidson underwent surgery at St. Joseph's hospital in Lewiston last Friday. She was brought home Sunday and is being cared for by her daughter, Mrs. Ray Hathaway.

Newman, with the Army of Occupation in Japan — as the whole group expected to soon be on their way home, and all hoped to make it by Christmas.

While we are on the subject of papers, we might say that our Armed Forces list has shrunk from a peak of 257 to just 17 — this week.

Shovel Busy "Scooping"

Last week a state power shovel, bull-dozer and several dump trucks hove onto the scene of last spring's cloudburst, and began clearing the old creek channel in an effort to do away with the "lake of the road" which was forming at the local ball diamond.

Several days of digging have been put in, and it was discovered that a larger shovel was needed to really clear the channel, since the small one brought up was not able to "cast" the rock far enough to permit opening of a real channel, and the steady flow of water discouraged the use of trucks.

A culvert was also put across the highway near the diamond to drain into the slough back of the Onstott, Emmett, Fey and Jones homes, and this in turn drains through a big soil pipe into the creek.

Of course, all the rock now being "cast" by the shovel will ultimately land in the slough, as a base filling for the new road approach — so very little, if any, time or labor is being lost, and there is a big improvement in the west part of town.

So far as the city is concerned, the concrete foundations are now poured under the houses moved to new locations — the E. E. McDowell and Bob DePeel homes, and they will soon be ready to lower them onto their permanent "bases."

Moves To New Location

Ed Dammarell & Sons, local representatives of the General Petroleum Co. moved this week to their new location, the former Johnson Garage building, next door to Long's store, and from that point will continue their present business.

Mr. Dammarell disposed of their old location to Wallace Emmett, who owns the adjoining building, and it will be turned into an apartment at once, to be occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Robert South, Mr. South being the new Kendrick Co-operative Creamery manager.

The financial consideration was not made public in either deal.

Family Get-Together

Ted and Floyd Dorendorf, Ernest, Herman and Frank Loeser and Robert Kimbley were Sunday breakfast guests at the Bud Magee home. It was the first time the group had been together for many years, the war and employment positions having been responsible.

DEMAND FOR CASH WHEAT REMAINS VERY ACTIVE

The demand for cash wheat in the Pacific Northwest markets has been very active during the past week, according to reports to the Production and Marketing Administration by the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Wheat prices generally were firm and strong throughout the week, but with Commodity Credit Corporation active in the markets, the export classes of wheat were especially strong, and reports indicate a rather large volume of business was transacted in export grain. Midwestern buyers were also active in the market for soft white wheat but business was limited on account of the serious shortage of box cars. Two cargoes of wheat for export are being loaded for the account of the C. C. C. in the Pacific Northwest, and others are expected to follow as soon as cars are available for shipment to the terminals. The car situation has not improved much during the past week as the shipments of wheat continue to be light.

Cash wheat prices in the Portland market advanced 1c per bushel during the week. On the last day of the period, the regular bid prices on the Portland Grain Exchange for 15-day shipment wheat of the export classes reached a new high for this marketing year, to date. Mills have been active in the market but principally for wheat suitable for export classes of flour. The demand for wheat from the feed trade has slackened materially on account of lower prices of corn. Wheat producers were reported to have been selling more freely during the week than for several weeks past. Receipts at the Columbia River terminals during the week were 134 cars, and at the Puget Sound terminals 267 cars, as compared with 227 cars and 174 cars respectively for the previous week.

Bid prices on the Portland Grain Exchange at the period's close were as follows: Soft white, soft white (no test) white club, western red and ordinary hard red winter, all $1.89 per bushel, basis No. 1 bulk, 15-day shipment, cash delivery.

Wheat purchased by the Commodity Credit corporation during the past week totaled 7,086,473 bushels, bringing the accumulated total since September 9, to 45,490,469.

The San Francisco wheat market strengthened during the week, with prices advancing around 5c per 100 to a new high point since early in the crop year. Light offerings and advances in other markets were chiefly responsible for the firm bay region market situation. Central California marketings were small with growers generally holding remaining supplies for somewhat higher than current bids, or around $3.35 per 100, country warehouse receipt basis for No. 1 hard white and No. 1 soft white wheat, wick.

Offerings from Pacific Northwest and Intermountain areas, usually supplying a large part of the bay region wheat needs also were small. Shippers in these sections reported difficulty in marketing purchases from growers and also in getting box cars for shipment. Local demand, on the other hand, was far from broad. Flour mills continued to place most of their needs in other areas and interest in wheat for feed purposes slackened still further, following declines in the corn price to new lows for the crop year to date.

Wheat receipts at Ogden, Utah, during the week totaled only 129 cars. Prices on that market showed: dark hard winter and dark northern spring, $1.92; hard winter and northern spring, $1.86; hard white, $1.86; soft white and western white, $1.82, all basis No. 1, bulk, f. o. b. Ogden.

Wheat prices were somewhat irregular in the Kansas City market, but the growing box car shortage and smaller receipts, together with government buying to meet export requirements, kept declines narrow. At the close of the period, liberalization of export regulations and permission for mills to grind upon December quotas, made for sharp advances. Cash wheat showed more strength than futures, with receipts only 542 cars for the week. Mills were many times as much interested in securing box cars as wheat. Mills were running at high level and public storage decreased more than a 1,000,000 bushels.

Cash wheat at Minneapolis averaged considerably lower for the week, although prices showed moderate upward reaction from the week's low point. Mill demand fell away almost completely early in the week when flour buying failed to follow recently advancing prices, especially as compared with futures, but at the lower levels re-entered the market in a moderate way. Commodity credit buying of wheat for lake movement before the close of navigation also renewed, which had a firming influence. At the

Weather Warm But Damp

Locally, dripping skies and warm weather have been the rule for the past week. True, there has been a frosty night or two, with the moon riding high, clear and full, and for those who cared to look, on such an occasion, the canyon and its surrounding hillsides were a beautiful sight.

However, clouds and rain have been the general rule. Lawns are a brilliant green and rose buds can be seen in a number of gardens about town. When Los Angeles admitted a "frosty 32" Kendrick's thermometers read 52!

DDT Proves Effective InDestroying Typhus Louses

DDT is deadly to the typhus flea as well as to the typhus louse. Epidemic typhus is carried by the body louse, and DDT first made a world reputation by checking epidemic typhus that threatened the Italian city of Naples. Endemic typhus is transmitted to man by several kinds of fleas that live most of their lives on rats. Department of agriculture research shows that DDT is deadly to these fleas and tests show that it may sometimes be easier to kill the fleas than to kill the rats.

To control endemic typhus, the first emphasis is always on eradication of the rats that are infested by the carrier fleas. But rat eradication has always proved difficult. Research reported by the bureau of entomology and plant quarantine shows that it is possible to kill nearly all of the typhus-carrying fleas in a rat-infested building by dusting rat holes, rat runs and cellar floors with DDT.

Harry K. Gouck, who developed these findings, has also devised an ingenious, simple, inexpensive and effective way of helping the rats to dust themselves with DDT and so get rid of their dangerous fleas. He rolls building paper to form a 3-inch cylinder. Inside the cylinder he arranges a strip of folded cheesecloth containing DDT powder so that it lies along the wall of the cylinder. He leaves several of these cylinders in a raty cellar or infested room. Rats naturally run through such tunnel-like arrangements and as they pass under the dusted cloth along the top of the cylinder they get enough DDT to kill the fleas on them.

Scalding Latest TechniqueIn Drying Wet Dishes

If you are an average home-maker, you probably wash six tons of dishes in a year, estimates Mrs. Ethel Self of Kansas State college, who recommends some shortcuts in this Cinderella task of the kitchen.

Dishes may be rinsed in scalding water, placed on a dish drainer and allowed to dry by themselves. It is only necessary to dry silver and glassware. A tall tomato juice can which has had the bottom perforated toward the outside with small nail holes makes a handy drainer for the silverware. A wooden disc with small holes bored over its surface and slipped into the base of the can will keep the silver from being scratched. This can, containing the silver, can be immersed into the scalding water and lifted out again, saving burned fingers.

Tongs may be used for lifting dishes out of the scalding water to place them on dish drainer. Plenty of good hot sudsy water and boiling hot rinse water will leave your dishes actually much cleaner than when dried with a towel.

Abnormal Fat

A combined lack of vitamins and endocrine hormones may cause the type of obesity in which humans weigh several times the normal body weight, Dr. Gustav J. Martin of Philadelphia told the American Chemical society. Experiments were made on rats in studies concerned not with ordinary fatness, but obesity in which humans soar up in weight, sometimes 700 to 800 pounds. Truly fat rats, weighing almost twice the normal adult weight, were produced through a combined lack of vitamin E and the male sex hormones, testosterone, Dr. Martin said. The experiments, he declared, showed clearly "that castration alone does not cause obesity." But this combined with a deficiency of vitamin E does produce true obesity.

Hardy Weeds

A majority of weeds found in the eastern part of our country and perhaps in other parts are of a high order of development. These are hardy creatures. They are not easily disturbed by abnormal agencies such as too much salts or too little salts, as are found in commercial fertilizers. Grasses and aster family members can withstand often ten times the osmotic concentration that could be tolerated by the mallows, geraniums or clovers. When the sea is blocked off and the land claimed for agriculture, when too much toxic salts of copper, mercury, or boron are used, grasses are one of the first economic plants which may be utilized after a time.

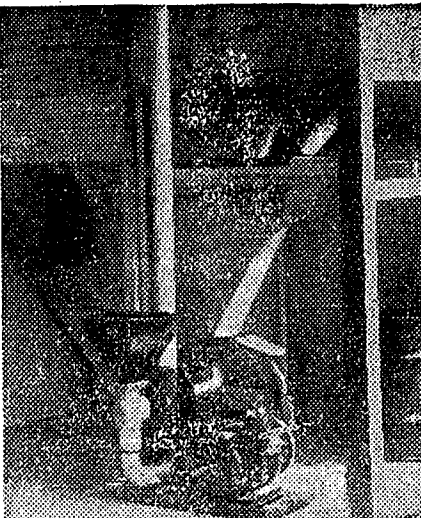

Remove Fruit Stains

Hold the kettle high when using boiling water to remove fruit, coffee or tea stains. The added force given to boiling water when poured from a height of two or three feet makes it more effective in driving out stains. Place the stained fabric over a large bowl or bucket on the floor, then pour boiling water from a kettle held several feet above. It is difficult to remove stains after they dry, so treat them at once if possible. Boiling water is one of the simplest remedies to use, if it doesn't hurt the cloth. Even warm water may remove the stain. However, never use soap. The alkali in it may set the stain and cause the removal to be even more difficult. If boiling water doesn't take out all the stain, use a mild bleach such as sunshine, hydrogen peroxide or sodium perborate.

Production Line Is Adapted to Farms*Mechanical Age Proves Benefit to Agriculture

The production line generally is considered to exist only in city factories but many farmers today have borrowed a leaf from industry's book by putting their grain handling operations on approximately the same automatic basis.

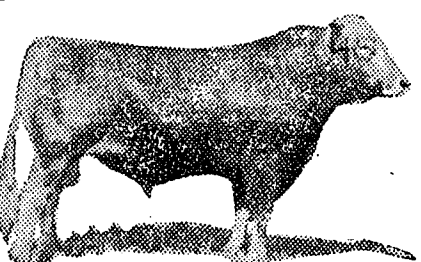

A by-product of the electro-agriculture age, a system of this nature is applicable to both small and large farms. Here's how it works: Grain-laden wagons are driven into the barn or adjacent to a building in which the produce is to be stored. Stationary or portable elevators, powered by electric motors as small as one-third horsepower (although one or, preferably, two horsepower motors are recommended by most agricultural specialists) raise the grain into bins located above the grinder and mixer. Electric hoists often are used to tilt up the front end of the wagon, allowing the grain to pour out of the end gate into the elevator hopper.

This blower-equipped hammer mill can be fed from overhead bins and later re-elevate the ground feed into adjoining bins, located over the mixer.

Unground grain flows by gravity through chutes to a blower-equipped grinder, which blows the ground grain back into another overhead bin, from which it again gravitates by chute to the mixer. Mixed feed is either fed out immediately, sacked, re-elevated into storage bins or blown directly into the feed lot. Tests show that one man can unload 40 loads of corn per day, or a load of grain in from two to three minutes, with an electrically operated elevator.

Know Your Breed Brown Swiss

First importation of Brown Swiss into the United States was in 1869. The breed is well adapted to intensive dairying conditions. Brown Swiss, due to their ruggedness and ability to consume large quantities of coarse roughages as well as their carcass value, are an ideal general farm breed.

The milk is white and the fat globules of medium size. The average test is 4 per cent butterfat.

Brown Swiss are second only to the Holstein in size among the dairy breeds. Mature cows will weigh about 1,850 pounds. They are heavier muscled, blockier and more fleshy and angular than other dairy breeds.

Inoculate SoybeansTo Get Ride of Weeds

The best way to help soybeans stay ahead of weeds is to inoculate the seed. The presence of large numbers of effective bacteria right from the start enables the young plants to draw nitrogen from the air for faster growth.

They quickly fill the row and shade the ground, preventing weed growth, conserving moisture, and lessening the need for cultivation. The effectiveness of soybean inoculation was demonstrated at an eastern experiment station. The inoculated test plots matured into a highly profitable crop due to better stands, aided by abundant supply of immediately available nitrogen.

How to Overcome Soft Corn Winter Problem

While putting whole corn plant in a silo offers the most satisfactory method of preserving maximum feed value. If silo capacity is insufficient, the ears may be snapped and made into ear corn silage which will keep well and produce about the same amount of beef. If the soft corn is not put in a silo, it will be advisable to use one of the improved artificial methods of drying the corn.

MARTHA was dependable. Like a patient, willing and uncomplaining horse. Her life on her small farm was not different from a tread mill, always the same, day in and day out, month after month, year after year.

There had been a time when Martha was not alone. That was when her older sister Helen and her younger sister Nancy and her still younger brother Curt lived there at the farm. But that was a long time ago, longer still since their parents had died. The sisters were beautiful and had married well, and Curt, possessed of burning ambitions, had left to make his way in the world.

Frequently they came out to call, to "eat one of Martha's wonderful dinners" and "get a breath of country air."

It was on a Christmas day that Nancy brought Barre Howard out. "I knew you wouldn't mind, darling," she gushed. "Mr. Howard is a traveler and he's lecturing in town tomorrow night."

Martha smiled and nodded and looked up into Barre Howard's tanned face, a face that was strong and kind, with eyes that held a dreamy mystery in their depths.

But no one would have dreamed that there were any thoughts in Martha's head save those that centered around preparations for the Christmas dinner.

It was a sumptuous meal, one of the best Martha had ever prepared. She knew a vague sort of pride at the way her guests attacked it.

Martha sat with the others at the table after the dinner was over, listening to Barre Howard tell of his travels, of far away places he'd visited. He looked at her twice while he talked, directly, penetratingly, and she flushed.

After a while Martha got up and began clearing off the table. No one offered to help. She washed and dried the dishes and stacked them away. And when she came back into the living room, they were ready to go, all of them. After they left she closed the door and turned and went back into the kitchen.

Martha laughed, shrilly and piercingly, and struck again.

For a moment she stood in the center of the floor. An expression came into her face that was the unleashing of years and years of suppressed desires. She took a quick step forward, seized a broom by its handle, swung it toward the shelf of canned preserves with all her strength.

Martha laughed, shrilly, piercingly, and struck again. The shelf gave way this time, swinging on one hinge. Half a hundred jars of varying size crashed to the floor.

Directly following there was an instant of silence, and in that instant a voice spoke near the kitchen door. "In heaven's name, what are you doing that for?"

Martha whirled, and there, just inside the door, an amazed look on his tanned face, stood Barre Howard. "Why?" she cried passionately. "Why? Because it's what I've wanted to do for years and years and years and it's just today I've had the courage. Because I hate this place, hate being cooped up here. Because I'm plain and unattractive and can't have the things my sisters have. Because Nancy's so selfish. Because she isn't satisfied with one man, but wants another, the only one—I—I—"

She stopped at last, breathing hard, leaning heavily against the sink, guilty, ashamed of what she'd almost said.

"I'm sorry. I didn't mean it. Really. If—if there's something you forgot, I'll help you find it."

"There's nothing I've forgotten." "Then—why did you come back? Why don't you go and leave me alone, like all the others do?"

His eyes were steady, penetrating, a dreamy mystery in their depths. "Why do you think I came back?" he asked.

"Why?" She brushed a hand across her eyes. Something was stirring inside of her, something she thought dead. "Why?" she repeated. "How should I know?" "Why do you think?" he asked again.

Barre Howard laughed and stood before her, and suddenly the look in his eyes was no longer mysterious. It was like a picture, readily interpreted, telling her why he had come back.

Agriculture Is Big Business
According to the U. S. Department of Agriculture, here are some of the highlights of Idaho's "big business" done on the farms of the state during 1945:

Gross crop value	$267,898,000
Production expenses	134,375,000
Net farm income	133,023,000
Govt. payments	9,889,000

Net income, plus payments $142,912,000
For the five-year period ending in 1945, the Bureau of Census report shows that Idaho farm produce increased in value by 156 per cent; field crops were up in value 172 per cent, and livestock and livestock products, other than poultry and dairy products, more than doubled in the period.

They Made "Good" Ships
Of the 1,725,000 tons of major warships lost by Japan in the last war, American carrier-based aircraft accounted for most with 680,000 tons sunk. Submarines destroyed 507,000 tons, and surface ships 257,000 tons. Land-based aircraft accounted for only 62,500 tons.

A STANDARD OF CALIFORNIA PRODUCT

Thaw Frozen Foods With Care to Preserve Nutrients

The preparation and serving of frozen foods, like other culinary arts, are subject to a wide play of personal preference. By careful thawing and serving at exactly the right stage of defrosting, it is possible to prepare attractive servings of products that would be rejected if served with no thawing or if completely thawed. The list of fruits, vegetables and juices that may be successfully frozen may be considerably extended as the art of serving is perfected.

Frozen products should be served so as to keep as much as possible of the natural or fresh flavor, taste, color, structure and internal juices. Care should be taken that no more food is thawed than is needed at a particular time, and refreezing should never be practiced. Nutritionally, legally, and otherwise, frozen foods are considered as fresh foods; and are consequently highly perishable.

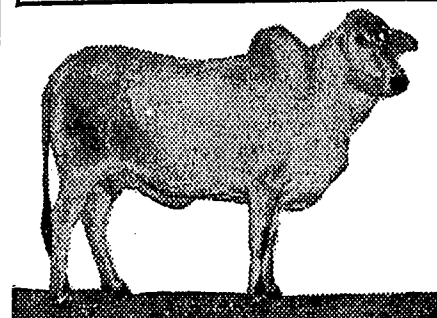

Vegetables to be cooked should remain in the closed containers and allowed to thaw either in a common refrigerator overnight, or at room temperature for several hours, or in luke-warm water which is gradually heated. Immediately after thawing they should be cooked in the water or juices that come from the vegetables during thawing, adding only water enough to prevent scorching. Cooking should be just sufficient to tenderize the vegetables and over-cooking must be avoided.

Maintain Health of Cattle During Fall

Seven Recommendations Given by Authorities

1. Select good heifer calves for herd replacements now.
2. Inspect herd frequently for screw-worms. Losses may be prevented by prompt treatment of wounds.
3. Maintain ample clean water supply, an average of about 12 gallons daily.
4. Watch for outbreaks of black-leg or anthrax, vaccinating when diseases are prevalent.
5. Check pastures and fence rows for poisonous plants. Now is the danger period.
6. Be sure stock has adequate feed for milk production and to build themselves up for the winter ahead.
7. Handle stock carefully, both in driving and hauling to market.

Know Your Breed Brahmins

Brahmans, the name given to the native humped cattle breed of India, were first imported into America because of their resistance to cattle fever tick, ability to forage for feed on poor land and capacity to stand extreme hot weather.

As Brahmins were used for milk and as work animals and not for beef, the original stock imported into southern states did not prove very suitable for beef. Rapid strides in breeding improvement has made Brahmins of demand on the market.

The modern Brahman is a bulky, blocky animal, built along beef lines, although he retains his hump, dewlap, lapping ears and his ability to thrive in warm weather.

List 'Dos' and 'Don'ts' For Proper Piano Care

The following is a list of "dos" and "don'ts" for proper piano care.

Make sure that your piano is tuned twice each year by an experienced piano service man; keep the room atmosphere uniform since sudden changes in temperature and moisture are damaging to the piano; hang a bag of camphor inside the piano case, or better still, have the service man spray with a reliable moth spray at intervals of two or three years; help control excessive humidity by placing an electric light bulb inside the piano case, and use only a slightly dampened cloth and mild soap to clean piano keys.

Don't place your piano near a heating unit; don't allow the direct rays of the sun to strike the piano; don't permit oils or cleaning fluids to come in contact with ivory piano keys — two causes for discoloration; don't place a humidifier near the piano, and don't neglect thorough servicing and tuning, especially during the first year after purchase.

Plants Use Magnesium

Magnesium is an older element than calcium or nitrogen as far as plant use is concerned, according to Dr. Eisenmenger, who pointed out that in the geological past plants probably were not using so abundantly the elements which our present day plants use. Magnesium serves a greater role during the infancy of the plant than during the approach of maturity, experiments reported by Dr. Eisenmenger show. Many domestic plants suffer quickly from low magnesium in the soil, being impaired greatly in growth and vitality. Among them are cotton, okra, hibiscus, apple, strawberry, raspberry, hydrangea, cabbage, cauliflower, turnip, barley, geranium and the American elm. The domestic raspberry is an excellent indicator of low magnesium content of soil by its chlorosis and slow growth, he said.

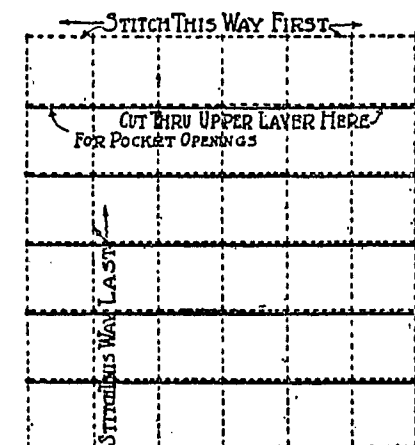

Use Penicillin for Mouth

Penicillin is probably the most effective agent yet developed for the treatment of acute oral lesions and for the prevention and treatment of infections in operative dentistry, a study at the University of California College of Dentistry indicates. Describing the results in some cases as spectacular, the dentists say they had treated a number of oral diseases, including several forms of gingivitis, Vincent's angina, and various ulcerative conditions. They administer penicillin simply, in the form of a lozenge, placed between the gum and cheek, which dissolves over a period of from one to five hours, bathing the injured area constantly with the drug. Ability to keep constant high concentration of penicillin in contact with the affected area is probably the greatest advantage the drug offers in this form. Another advantage is simplicity of administration.

Cheap Beef Cuts

Cheaper cuts of beef are as good or better than more tender but more expensive cuts as a source of amino acids, the "building blocks" of protein, scientists reported. The drippings from cooked meat should be eaten to get the most value, for it may contain up to 20 per cent of the protein and amino acids of the fresh meat, they declared. The human body takes in proteins and converts them into amino acids, the "bricks" of proteins, and the amino acids then are recombined to form new cells and tissues. The human body itself can make many of these amino acids, but at least eight of them must be supplied in food. The human body cannot manufacture these eight.

Use Seed Corn Tester

Seed Corn Tester Made of Cloth, with Pockets for the Kernels.

Ear seed corn tester, shown in illustration, may be made any size. By taking two yards of muslin cloth, doubling it and stitching across every 1 1/2 inches, cutting just below the lines of stitches, then stitching it the other way, pockets in which to place the corn to be tested can be made. This will provide 576 pockets.

To fill, start at the lower left-hand corner, putting two or three kernels from an ear in each pocket, keeping record. When filled, double and roll the tester and soak in water a few minutes daily. Roll in a dry cloth and keep in a warm room. In four or five days the kernels will be well sprouted if fertile.

Farm Ponds Aid to Proper Flood Control

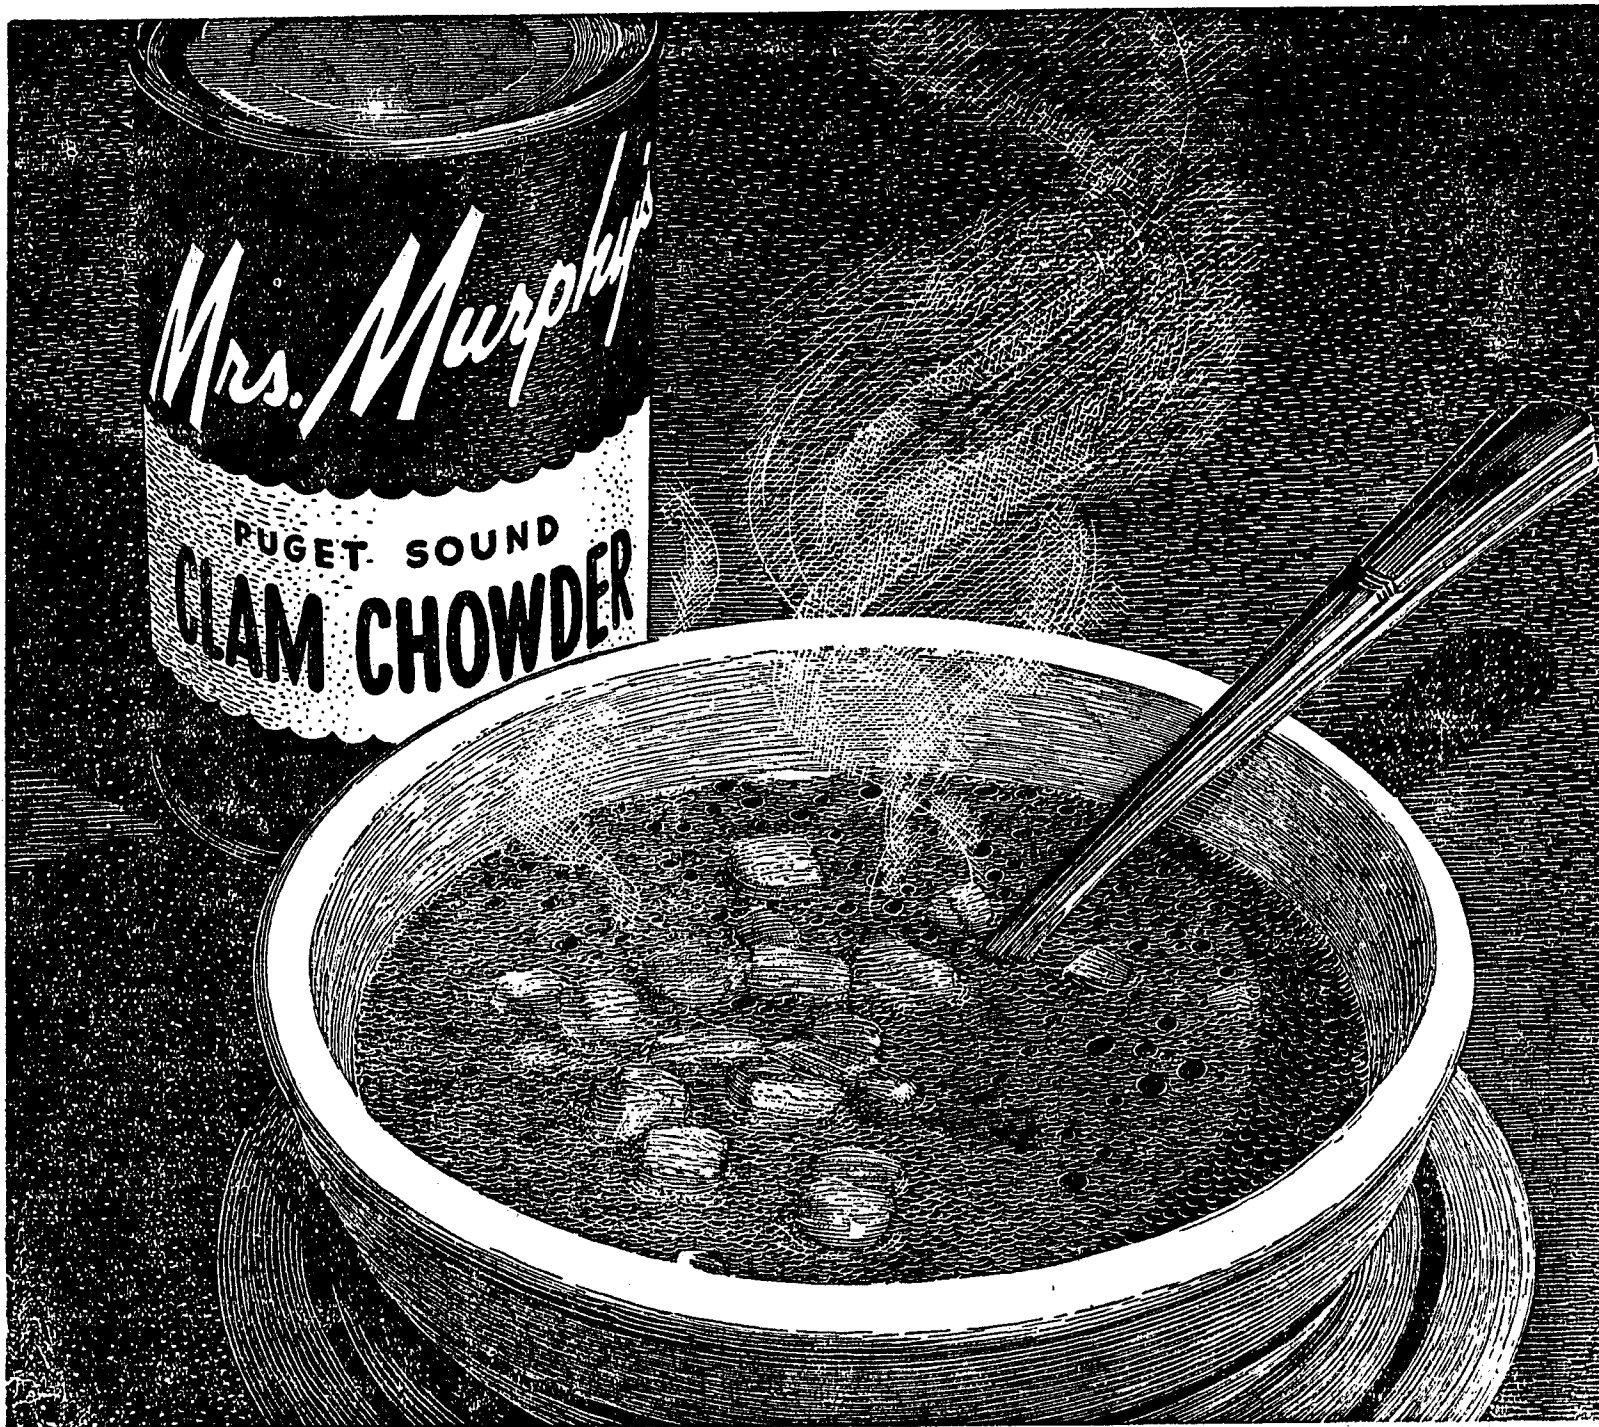

Where possible, a farm pond should have a relatively small drainage area, points out Clemson station authorities. If the entire water supply can be had from one or two large springs, the location is excellent.

If a small stream must be used, it is very necessary to construct a large emergency spillway to care for excess water during flood periods. All of the spillway should be screened to prevent loss of fish during high water.

Sterilamp Use in the Poultry Shed Advised

Invisible bullets of light, sprayed by the sterilamp ultra-violet tube, has given the poultry raiser a new weapon to combat air-borne cross infections which are responsible for causing a high rate of mortality among chicks. In tests made it was found that chick mortality could be cut in half and that hatching losses were greatly reduced when the ultraviolet tube was installed.

MAIN STREET

Who put the R. R. hauls in Mrs. Murphy's Chowder?

This product, we hasten to explain, is imaginary. But if you were Mrs. Murphy, and you wanted to make a lot of clam chowder, you might well do exactly what real-life manufacturers do...

You would call in Northern Pacific and talk to us about a profit-making location for your factory. You'd tell us how large a plant you have in mind... how many people you'd employ... we could advise you where to get your clams...where to sell your chowder...

From the NP industrial development man you would soon learn about likely building sites, existing plants, real estate prices, shipping costs, labor supply, power supply. The profitable result: a factory on NP trackage providing efficient railroad hauls for your raw clams and for your canned chowder, or whatever products are involved.

We don't call this kind of work "social planning". We call it good business. It's good business for you, too. By having a hand in shaping the whole industrial pattern of Main Street, Northern Pacific has helped make more markets, more jobs, more opportunities for those who live along our line.

If you know a better way to run a railroad, we'd like to hear from you. We'd like to hear from you anyway.

THE FIGHTING SIXTY-THIRD

Let me tell you a story,
It's known by very few
About the Sixty-third infantry
And it's battles of World War II.

On July twenty-first, nineteen-forty-three,
We left from California
Some distant land to see
We landed in Oahu
Just for a short stay,
And six months after landing
We again were on our way.

Aboard the U. S. S. Monterey
We sailed the Coral Sea,
And on January thirtieth
We docked at New Guinea.

On June eighth of forty-four,
A sad day I can tell,
We started into battle
And went through all of hell.

It was at the Maffin Bay battle
The regiment got some fame
When they defeated the Japanese thirty-sixth —
A division with a name!

The going got much rougher
And on February twenty-first,
We started on the Shimbu line,
Where the fighting was the worst!

Two months of bloody fighting,
And then these words we heard:
"You cracked the Shimbu Line men,
More fame for the sixty-third!"

The fighting wasn't over,
There's still more men to get;
And General Yamashita,
Is the biggest one yet!

So we took the job of getting him,
And all of his command,
And just one month later,

We had them well in hand!

Then the day of happiness came —
They said: "The War was done,"
We had done our fighting
And it wasn't just for fun!

Even then this victory
An awful price had cost;
We had fourteen hundred casualties,
Three hundred three which were lost.

This isn't all our record
And if you want to know the rest,
Just ask a man from the sixty-third,
For he can tell you best!

Often as I sit in the barracks,
Often these words I've heard:
"I'm proud to be a member of
The fighting sixty-third!"
— Cpl. Harry L. Harris.

AS THE SEASONS GO BY

In summer there's work to do,
I watch the good man
Mow the hay,
While in my smaller field —
I the lawn-mower do wield,
And cut the grass,
That grows so rank,
By the lily pool and bank.
Berries to pick —
Fruit to can —
There's work for woman as for man,
But when the sun has gone to rest;
'Tis then we know
That we are blest
With life, and love and work to do,
And strength from Above
To see us through
Our many daily tasks.

When in Autumn we glean
The harvest in,
And give Thanks for
Sunshine and for rain,
That gave the golden fruit and grain,
I see the leaves turn gold and red,
And wild geese flying south o'er head
I know there is a hand Divine
That moves to mould
This life of mine.

In winter I have no desire to stray
Out of doors
Or o'er the way;
But sit so cozy by the fire
With my needle or my hoop

In spring — quite the other way,
I could stay out of doors
All day —
Among the flowers peeping through,
Or gaze on Heaven's brightest blue —
As I watch the bluebird
Build its nest,
'Tis then I know
I love spring best!

"I'll make a new sport coat for you," agreed the overworked tailor, "but it won't be ready for 30 days."

"Thirty days!" protested the customer. "Why the entire world was created in six days."

"True," said the tailor. "And have you taken a good look at it lately?"

Market your products the "Co-operative Way." It pays!
