WHAT JULIAETTA FRIENDS ARE DOING THESE DAYS

I. E. A. Local Meeting

The first meeting of the Idaho Educational Association, Local of District No. 283, was held Monday evening at the Juliaetta school. Mrs. Cecil Gruell, president, presided.

Committees for the year were appointed and plans started for observing National Education Week of Nov. 7-13. Mrs. Gruell reported on meetings attended at Lewiston and Moscow, and Mrs. Elsie Deobald compared the "Teachers Retirement System" and the "Federal Social Security."

Refreshments were served by the Juliaetta teachers to the 15 members present.

Fire In Home Basement

A fire which started near the furnace last Friday in the R. E. Woody home, was put out by the quick thinking of Mrs. Woody.

When she noticed the fire, flames were shooting three feet high in the basement around the furnace. She called her husband, who was at the barn, and together they carried water down the stairs to put the fire out — making a number of trips. Some boards were burned, but damage was considered small.

However, Mrs. Woody has been confined to her bed since the incident. No doubt the scare, together with the exertion of running up and down stairs and carrying buckets of water was too much strain for her heart.

Improving TV Distribution System

George F. Brocke & Sons, local owners of the TV coaxial cable that supplies Kendrick, have been quite busy this past while installing new amplifiers along their system. This step was first made necessary by the lightning storm of some four weeks ago, which burned out several — and so replacements were made with the very latest type. This proved so satisfactory that Jack Kuykendall has been installing them throughout the entire system.

Too, as more and more sets have been and are being hooked on, the load necessitated bigger amplifiers. Many said that "Kendrick would never have TV." But have it they do, thanks to Brocke & Sons.

SALES DAY PLANS COMPLETE — FULL DAY IS PROMISED

Plans for Kendrick's Annual Sales Day, sponsored this year by the Kendrick Community Lions Club, are now complete, and all that is hoped for is good weather.

As in the past the Auction will be held on the street between the Red Cross Pharmacy and the Kendrick Cafe. If the weather is bad, the sale will be held in the Auto Freight depot, courtesy of Walter Brocke.

The exhibits will be held in the Kendrick Fire hall and consist this year, primarily of flowers and garden produce.

In the afternoon there will be a program of sports in the city park — as Coach Denney Racocit was unable to schedule a football game. For those who do not care to view the sports there will be a picture show, beginning at 1:00 p. m. — and of course there are rummage sales, cooked food sales, etc., not to mention the specials to be found at the local stores.

Those having items for the auction are reminded to please get them in early enough to have them tagged and listed by Ed. Long.

Those entering displays are also asked to bring them in early — and be sure your name is on the vase or item to be displayed.

The day will end with a dance, sponsored by the V. F. W. Auxiliary, at 9:00, in the Kendrick gym.

Band News

The Washington Water Power Co. Freezer and Cooking School, held on Thursday, September 30th, was a real success, both to the audience and to the sponsoring Band Uniform Fund. The Fund realized a net income of $91.00 to apply toward the $2,000.00 needed to pay for the new high school band uniforms.

Coffee for the evening was donated by N. B. Long & Sons; Gambles Western Auto Supply gave an electric toaster, and the Abrams Hardware an electric pop corn popper to be given away as door prizes during the evening. Other door prizes awarded were the items of food prepared by the home economists, Jean Ensor of the W. W. P. Co., and Pat Sheeley of the International Harvester Co.

Another money raiser to benefit the Band Uniform Fund has been planned for this week by the recently formed Band Mothers Club. This group is sponsoring a Food Basket Award for Sales Day, October 9th. The basket of food will be in clothes basket, with all items donated by members of the Mothers Club. All proceeds will go to the Band Uniform Fund.

The Kendrick High School Band wishes to thank the many persons helping, both actively and by financial support, to pay for these new uniforms. Such support is a real credit to the community and the band will do its best to repay that support by showing everyone that the Kendrick School District No. 283, is definitely not "just another spot on the map."

Lost For Thirty-seven Years
A gold signet ring owned by Marvin Vincent, was found Monday, after laying in the earth for 37 years.

Mr. Vincent purchased the ring in 1917, and says that he wore it about six months, then lost it. Many things happened after that. He went into the service and overseas in World War I — came home, was married and raised a family. Then on Monday afternoon — 37 years later, the ring was found in the yard at the family home near Leland. After a little polishing the original luster was restored.

The only catch — Marvin can't wear it — 'cause it doesn't fit anymore!

Retires — To Live In Spokane
George F. Calvert, well known resident of this area, and for the past 11 years Star Route mail carrier at Lenore, retired on October 1st, and has purchased a home at 2908 N. Standard Street in Spokane, where he and Mrs. Calvert will make their home.

Mr. Calvert, an ordained minister, served several U. B. churches in this section, and during the war also was employed as a mechanic at the Kendrick Garage, later moving to Lenore.

He says that he has no active plans of any kind for the future — but will fish a bit, hunt a bit, and "just generally take it easy."

They would be glad to have friends call at any time.

How Safe Is Your Home?

U. of I., Moscow — National Fire Prevention Week couldn't come at a better time than the early part of October, as it does this year, says Gene Craig, extension agricultural engineering specialist in charge of the farm safety program at the University of Idaho.

As Craig explains it, this is the time when most folks over the nation really begin building home fires. Up to that time, there is need for just enough fire to "take the chill off the house" for part of the day. From October on, fires are bigger and furnaces are hotter. The result is often disastrous when heating systems are unchecked before cold weather.

Craig's ideas of checking the heating system before it goes into heavy duty firing for the winter are simple enough. Check flues and chimneys from fire box to the last foot of chimney of the housetop. Make sure that no leaks are going to let flame out to catch nearby boards or other inflammable material. Be sure that all flues are clear of debris that might clog them to cause a gas explosion. Dampers should be working well to control drafts and prevent flue overheating. Clean oil stoves to make sure that they do not flood and become overheated from excess oil.

"And don't forget that debris in basements and attics is a real fire hazard," Craig explains. "When litter exists, it only takes a spark to set it off."

How to build your fence so it lasts years longer

Your fence lasts longer when it has just the right amount of elasticity to take care of expansion and contraction, and absorb heavy blows. So don't stretch woven wire too tight. Pull the tension curves (waves in horizontal wire) to only about half normal size. The U-S-S American Fence, shown above, is specially shock-resistant. This copper-bearing, galvanized fence is America's favorite, easy to splice and handle, always full gauge. Any kind, size, for any farm purpose. Water Supply Vital In Farm Fire Control Annual Damage Amounts To Over $100 Million

Recently a New Jersey farmer's barn was set afire by lightning, and despite the efforts of three fire departments from nearby villages, the barn was a complete loss.

Two factors combined to defeat the firemen. There was a delay in notifying the fire department because the fire wasn't immediately noticed. There wasn't a good supply of water near the barn from which the pumpers could draw.

These conditions are common to most properties in rural or small town areas. If rural residents can find means to correct them, they will go a long way toward reducing the large number of "total losses" that occur on farm properties, causing damage amounting to $100,000,000 a year and taking the lives of 3,500 farm residents.

No water. There is not much these firemen could do to save the barn without an adequate water supply.

In spite of efforts on the part of county agents, farm groups, insurance men, and volunteer fire departments to encourage the building of farm ponds, there still are thousands of farms in all parts of the country with inadequate water supplies.

The easiest way to provide adequate water is to dam a brook, or deepen an existing marsh or water hole near the barn. Or a farmer may be able to bulldoze a suitable pond near his buildings. For proper drainage, the pond should be laid out with surveying instruments.

"Sound of Corn Growing" Recorded by Professor

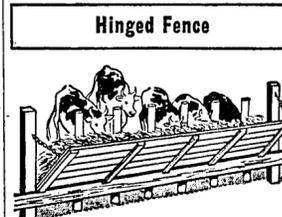

Probably every farmer in the United States at one time or another has heard the old saw "it's so hot you can almost hear the corn growing." Now, seven men, including three University of Wisconsin experts, have joined the ranks of believers.

They have a tape recording of what they describe as corn growing. Herbert Jacobs, telegraph and farm news editor of the Madison Capital Times, thought up the idea. With the aid of Wisconsin U. experts the experiment was conducted in a 100-acre stand of university raised corn.

Recording equipment was carried 500 feet into the field. Microphones were carried deep into the corn rows. There was no wind or other noises to complicate the recording, the experimenter reported.

When the experiment was over and the recording played, Verner E. Suomi, associate professor of meteorology at the school, said: "When background noises subsided, you could hear that corn growing."

Farm experts report corn makes 80 per cent of its growth during night-time and will grow as much as two to five inches in one night.

Here is an idea a number of midwest farmers might use in their feed lots. Hinged at the bottom and held in position by chains, a section of fence is lowered to form a manger. It can be raised when not in use to become again part of the fence. Posts should be set along the length of the manger as illustrated.

Farm Land Prices Up Sharply in Nebraska

Farm land dollar values in Nebraska have increased 124 per cent since 1939, according to figures of the bureau of agricultural economics. In the west north central region of the country, of which Nebraska is a part, prices have increased 3 per cent during the four months ending in July. This despite the usual seasonal reduction in farm real estate activity and a downturn in farm products.

Squirrel Provides Big Part Of Nation's Yearly Game Bag

Although it is generally recognized as a prolific game species of extensive range, comparatively few people realize the truly important part the squirrel plays in the nation's game bag.

Several years ago the Remington Arms Company, Inc., conducted a survey of national wildlife resources and sportsmen's hunting preferences. The survey revealed that the squirrel ranked second only to the rabbit as the most sought-after game species in the country.

A recent analysis of "Hunters' Scorecards" returned to the office of the Mississippi Game and Fish commission placed the squirrel in an outstanding position in the hunting activities of the sportsmen of the Magnolia state. The analysis brings to light the fact that 79 per cent or 150,000 of the licensed hunters in Mississippi sought squirrel during the 1950-51 hunting season. The cotton-tail rabbit and the Bob White quail practically tied for second high rank, with the rabbit nosing out the quail by the slight margin of 47.15% to 47.12%. Next in line was the lowly 'possum with the somewhat surprising score of 23.06%, topping the dove's rating of 21.58%.

A breakdown of the analysis in hunting activity percentage and estimated total statewide kill follows: deer 6%, 1,370; wild turkeys 1.35%, 240; quail 47.12%, 2,119,532; squirrel 79.83%, 2,418,574; rabbit 47.15%, 900,360; coon 16.2%, 208,712; 'possum 23.06%, 386,145; dove 21.58%, 522,876; ducks 8.97%, 182,217.

Patients On Salt-Free Diet Given Hope for Meal Variety

Patients on a monotonous salt-free diet were given the hope of adding more variety to their meals in two reports on further experiments in the recently developed exchange resin therapy. Exchange-resin compounds have been administered to patients having congestive heart failure, cirrhosis of the liver, or kidney ailments which cause excessive fluids to collect in the system. The resin compounds eliminate the sodium which locks in the fluids. Because of this action, it becomes possible for the patient to take more sodium in his diet than would otherwise be possible.

In a report on resin therapy presented by Drs. Carl Voyles, Jr., and Edward S. Orgain, Duke University School of Medicine, Durham, N. C., it was concluded that "Resin therapy is a useful adjunct to conventional therapy in the management of chronic congestive heart failure, and it can be used safely in conjunction with strict sodium restriction in patients who are followed closely. Resin therapy also makes possible the addition of sodium chloride in amounts sufficient to render the diet more palatable," the report added, and it facilitates the action of mercurial compounds that help in fluid elimination.

The second report on exchange resin therapy reviewed studies by Drs. B. L. Martz, K. G. Kohlstadt, and O. M. Helmer, at the Lilly Clinic for Cardiovascular Research, Indianapolis.

Sleep Anywhere

One of the most energetic causes of sleep is fatigue. It is said that prisoners upon the rack have slept through sheer exhaustion while undergoing the horrors of torture. In a like manner, if one is tired enough he will be able to sleep on the floor or on any manner of uncomfortable bed, although he will not thoroughly relax. To the person who has known the luxury of sleeping on a good quality bed, though, sleeping on a worn out, sagging mattress and spring is almost as much torture as going to sleep on a prisoner's rack.

War and Peace

Development of the flame thrower, which first became a military weapon during World War II and has been used extensively by the Army in Korea, led to the peacetime perfection of a highly proficient weed killer. Tests at the Army Chemical Corps Center, at Edgewood, Maryland, proved that a thin jet of burning, jellied gasoline would kill weeds between rows of plants without harming the plants themselves.

Deciding Issue

If it had not been for the magic of the name "George Washington" the fabulous Phineas T. Barnum may have lived out his life in obscurity as a poor country storekeeper. One day, the man who was to become known as "the greatest showman on earth" heard an interesting story of a remarkable Negro woman, Joice Heth, who claimed to be 161 years old. When he went to see her, purely out of curiosity, she asserted that she had been the nurse of George Washington. Barnum became so excited upon discovery of documentary evidence to back up her claims, he decided to sell his store and exhibit the strange old woman in the east. The tour proved so successful, and stirred up so much interest, he was inspired to engage in other similar ventures. Finally, he formed the partnership with James A. Bailey, out of which grew the most famous circus in America.

Experts Say Barn Windows Practicable Sun Reduces Disease And Barn Moisture

Farm experts are urging farmers to make practical use of sunshine to solve some of their problems of moisture, sanitation and daylighting inside farm buildings by installing large windows.

Farm building windows in the past have been too small, have frosted over during cold weather so that sufficient sun energy could not get into the building to provide warmth. Also, little attention has been given to the germicidal effect of direct sunlight in the poultry house, dairy barn or farrowing pen.

Proper ventilation and sunlight not only helps to dry up moisture, but direct sunlight helps kill bacteria wherever they gain access to farm buildings.

As an example of the sun's heating power, in a central farrowing house in Iowa using insulated windows in the south wall, the inside temperature never dropped below freezing although the outside temperature hit 25 to 30 degrees below zero.

Wheat, Corn Estimates Below Last Year Yield

The nation's 1951 corn and wheat crops will fall short of 1950 production, according to the latest U. S. Department of Agriculture report.

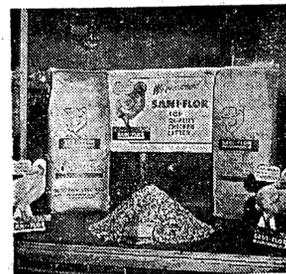

The corn crop for all purposes is estimated at 3,105 million bushels, a decline of 26 million bushels from last year's production, but above the 1940-49 average of 2,981 million bushels. The indicated yield per acre of 36.7 bushels is 0.9 bushels above the average of 33.9 bushels.

Production of corn for grain this year is estimated at 2,789 million bushels compared with 2,845 million bushels last year.

Total wheat production is estimated at 994 million bushels, about 3 per cent smaller than the 1950 crop of 1,027 million, and 7 per cent smaller than the average of 1,071 million bushels.

Corn and wheat production, however, is expected to meet U.S. needs.

Poultry Litter

A specially-processed vermicult poultry litter has been put on the market for the first time. Poultry producers might find that it will fulfill their needs. Called Sani-Flor, it is fireproof, vermin-proof, an efficient insulator against cold, and a non-conductor of electricity. The product is being introduced to seed and feed dealers and hardware stores across the country. It comes in four cubic foot bags, weighing about 25 pounds.

Dead Tree Perils Are Acute When Winter Hits

Alive, trees are considered among the householder and farmer's best friends. Dead, they become his most dangerous enemies. Trees that succumb to insects or disease have a way of developing into serious menaces long before owners are aware of their peril. These woody foes should be removed before winter storms hit. Snow, sleet and howling winds make them acutely dangerous.

Elves and Leprechauns Took Blame for Everything

It may not be on the official unemployment records, but the fact is that there are hundreds of shees, leprechauns, and elves out of a job.

Since each one of them has a long history of diligent service to humanity, it seems a real shame they can't be put back to work. Each of us needs one to take the rap for the petty annoyances of daily living. These out of the way, we could devote ourselves to the big problems.

According to the Childcraft reference library, our ancestors used the little people to full advantage. They let them take the responsibility of souring the milk, rattling the windows and creaking the stairs, and breaking Aunt Nellie's best china.

A nice feature of the little scamps, too, is their wide range of nationality.

Did your parents come from Scandinavia? Then you will want to select an elf. This pint-sized creature will live in your home and help keep the kitchen neat. If he occasionally cracks a dinner plate or burns the toast, you can't very well complain. That's what you want him for, to take the blame, isn't it.

Pixies are your choice if you have British ties, and there is a fine assortment of shees for you Scottish folks. If you are Irish you may select between the revelry-loving shees and the rather dour leprechauns, who, incidentally, are apt to ignore you as they spend most of their time making shoes for the shees.

If you favor France you will have to get along with a goblin. But maybe he's better than a German poltergeist, who is downright rowdy. He will cause no end of commotion until someone bakes him a spice cake.

Just a word of warning before you adopt one of these little chaps—they believe in people, and definitely expect people to believe in them.

Life Expectancy for Man Reaches 65-Year Average

Man once shared the life expectancy of a pack-donkey, but over a 2,000 year period has attained a 65-year average—almost rivaling the 70-year expectancy of the whale, the longest-lived mammal in the life chart.

But this increased age has drawbacks in the form of cancer, diabetes and heart disease.

The average Roman of about 50 B. C. lived only 25 years. Modern medicine and sanitation now give man at least 40 more years—and a greater chance of having one of the diseases usually associated with the aging of the human body.

Human progress up the life-expectancy ladder is something of a triumph for man, who is not too well endowed with protective equipment. He is the only mammal in the higher brackets who is without some form of protective armor. For example, he ranks with the whale, 70; the elephant, 60; the hippopotamus, 40; and the alligator, 40 years.

Domesticated mammals range in life expectancy from the dog, 10 years, to the cow and horse, 20 years, and the burro, 25. Lowest mammal in the chart is the mouse, who lives from 2 to 6 years.

"Breaking Up" Water

Water, which consists of hydrogen and oxygen, can be broken up into these elements by electrolysis. If two wires, carrying a direct electrical current, are placed in water, bubbles of oxygen form around the one connected to the negative side of the battery or generator, while oxygen forms around the wire connected to the positive terminal. Usually a small amount of acid must be added to the water to make it conductive of electricity. Also, if water, in the form of steam, is heated to a very high temperature, around 3500 F, it separates into hydrogen and oxygen. These recombine to form water as the temperature is lowered again.

Longer Life for Sheets

To lengthen the life of sheets follow these suggestions. Reverse sheets every other time by putting a bottom hem at the top. Cover bare springs with heavy sheet or sheeting to avoid snagging bed linens. And check all beds for needed carpentry. Put a mattress pad between the sheet and the mattress to avoid the abrasive action of the rough ticking against the sheet. Loosen the edges of the sheet until all around before stripping the bed. Use mild solution of bleaches and rinse thoroughly, or better still, let the sunshine do your bleaching. Always rinse thoroughly to remove traces of soap and soap powders.

Study Premature Babies

An instrument corresponding to a miniature iron lung has been used by University of Michigan researchers in studying premature babies. Object of the studies was to find out why premature babies breath irregularly—in gasps or jerks. The research has shown that the cause of this irregular breathing is that oxygen is not reaching the tissue of the brain center which controls respiration.

Five-Grass Mixture Popular in Indiana

Pays Off in Higher Quality Hay, Pasture

Farmers in 12 northeastern Indiana counties swear by a 5-grass mixture that pays off in extra tons of high quality hay and pasture.

The combination includes timothy, broome, red clover, Ladino clover and alfalfa, reports Walter Rusk, county agent of Huntington county. This legume-grass combination, he said, could profitably be used by farmers in other states.

When plenty of fertilizer carrying nitrogen, phosphate and potash is used at seeding time and plant nutrients are top-dressed each year, this 5-grass mixture has yielded as much as 3 tons of hay at the first cutting on many farms. One farmer in the area insists that 5 acres of the mixture provides more forage than he previously got from about 60 acres of pasture.

Norman Thompson, who farms near Huntington, Indiana, reports that he grazed 27 head of cattle, including 16 milk cows and 11 calves, as well as 100 small pigs and 16 sows for 5 weeks on a 5-acre pasture seeded to the 5-grass mixture.

Rusk points out that the well fertilized legume-grass mixture is doing an important soil building job, besides giving farmers a preferred position in forage supplies. The tap-roots of the legumes drill down deep to keep the soil open and well ventilated. They add organic matter to improve the soil's tilth and drainage. Large quantities of organic matter in the soil mean increased water-holding capacity. They also make it possible to get the best possible efficiency out of every ton of fertilizer used.

Improved Ever-Bearing Strawberry Developed

Strawberries from your garden from June to October are possible with the new, improved ever-bearing strains. Although the biggest crop comes from mid-to-late June, plants will continue to produce enough for breakfast cereal and dinner desserts until frost arrives.

Planting should be done as early in the spring as possible.

Said to thrive in any type of soil, is a new high-yielding variety developed by plant breeders of the Westerhauser Nurseries of Sawyer, Michigan. Called the "20th Century", this ever-bearing type is said to fruit in about 60 days and produce large, sweet, full-flavored berries all season long.

Seasoned gardeners recommend picking off the first blossoms so as to enable the roots to develop plenty of strength. They point out that while you may lose the first few fruits, you will gain in much bigger yields later in the summer.

Grand Champion

Time of Plowing Should Depend on Type of Soil

Ohio State University farm experts report type of soil should determine whether a farmer plows his land in fall or spring. Tests over a 14-year period indicate spring plowing is preferable on light soils. If plowed in the fall the ground has a tendency to become compacted by spring. On heavier soils tests show late fall plowing gives as good or better granulation of the soil than spring plowing.

Take It As A Compliment

If someone calls you a "cabbage head" in a mean tone of voice, do what you like about the gruff tone, but take the "cabbage-head" as a compliment. The chances are that a good head of cabbage is more useful all the way round than the most beautiful rose.

Look at the family tree of the cabbage if you're doubtful. Miss Mary Jane Paterson, extension nutritionist for the University of Idaho says Germans or the early Saxon people were probably the first to grow cabbage. And they were doing this about the time that Rome was in its highest glory. In fact, the Germans and Saxons probably got the word "cabbage" from the Latin word "caput," meaning head.

And bear in mind that cabbage is next to old king potato as the leading vegetable of the United States as of 1954. Potatoes hold the first place. And there's lots of good reasons for putting cabbage on the table. Miss Paterson says it's one of the highest foods in vitamin content. Good cabbage has sizeable amounts of vitamin C, vitamin A, thiamine, and niacin, and a good supply of calcium and iron.

Incidentally, cabbage is one of the cheapest of food buys right now. So, the family ought to have plenty of cabbage salads, cold slaw, cabbage and ham-socks, ad infinitum. And it is also a good time to make up a few gallons of sauer kraut. If there's anything better, you name it!

Good Teacher, Too! "What did mama's little boy learn in school today?" simpered a lady to her offspring.

"I learned two boys," responded the junior, "not to call me 'mama's little boy'."

Bean Harvest Going Forward
 One unfamiliar with local conditions might think this very late for bean harvesting operations — and they would be right, for it is very late — but the operations are going forward just the same, with a considerable acreage yet remaining to be threshed, most having been cut.
 The greater part of the acreage remaining is red beans with a few pintos. Frost has helped greatly, as it checked all growth tendency. However, it will leave a few shriveled beans.
 Trucks may be seen going by loaded with the "fruit of the Potlatch," in boxes and in sacks. It is estimated that another week of good weather will be needed to complete harvesting.

There are more than 80 separate steps in making a gold pen point.

GAMMA GLOBULIN TO BE QUITE PLENTIFUL SOON

Gamma Globulin, for the prevention of paralytic polio, measles and infectious hepatitis, will be available on doctors' prescriptions through regular medical supply channels after Oct. 1, it was announced this week by Lederle Laboratories Division of American Cyanamid Co. Heretofore the protective blood fraction has been allocated by the Federal Office of Defense Mobilization to local departments of health for use in polio epidemic areas only. The processed supply of gamma globulin available to physicians this year, though still very small, is approximately twice as large as last year's supply.

In a report to physicians sent out this summer, Dr. Kenneth S. Landauer, assistant medical director of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, points out that "gamma globulin is the only proved weapon now available to physicians for prophylaxis against paralytic poliomyelitis."
 "The basic scientific evidence established in 1951 and 1952 field trials that gamma globulin can prevent paralytic polio has recently been not only reaffirmed but strengthened, so that its usefulness seems even greater than we formerly believed," states Dr. Landauer.

Failure to understand the limitations of gamma globulin accounted for public confusion during the summer of 1953, when it was made available as a public health measure, says Dr. Landauer. "As a result of the mode of distribution, the 1953 use of gamma globulin for mass or group prophylaxis against poliomyelitis was only in rare instances correctly timed for maximum effectiveness," Dr. Landauer writes. "In many communities it was not given until after the peak of a polio epidemic had already passed. Adverse reports on its use were therefore scientifically meaningless. Data collected in the 1951-1952 control studies still stand as valid, reliable and undisputed."

While the use of gamma globulin in polio is comparatively new, the agent has a long history of usefulness against measles — in offering temporary immunity and in reducing the severity of an attack of the disease. The lifting of restrictions on the sale of gamma globulin this year will make much more available for measles protection.

Since gamma globulin is extracted from human blood, the supply will always be limited. Lederle processes gamma globulin through arrangements made with large hospitals throughout the east. No donated blood from the Red Cross of other agencies is used by Lederle.

Not to be confused with the polio vaccine now undergoing trial in this country, gamma globulin may perhaps be described as a grab bag of temporary immunity. It is that part of human blood which prevents an individual from catching some infectious diseases twice. It carries the antibodies developed to combat a disease during illness. Even a light case of infectious hepatitis will produce antibodies. Most adults have antibodies against polio and measles in the gamma globulin of their blood because they have had light cases of these diseases, some perhaps without knowing it. When the gamma globulin from a thousand or more different individuals is pooled together, the pool is certain to contain antibodies against polio, measles and infectious hepatitis.

Collection and distribution of gamma globulin is an organized way for the immune to lend their immunity to individuals who have no antibodies of their own. As long as the borrowed antibodies remain in the blood, they will prevent or reduce the severity of an attack of the disease against which they were originally manufactured. But after five to eight weeks, the borrowed antibodies pass out of the blood. The main use of gamma globulin then, is to safeguard against an epidemic or a threatened exposure in the immediate future.

THE HIGHWAY JUNK YARD

Most of us who live in Idaho are proud of the scenic beauty of the state. We boast about our wild country, practically inaccessible to man. We never fail to tell about our wonderful fishing streams, and of the irrigated lands of plenty. We tell all of the natural resources, and of the opportunities we have in the Gem State.

The Department of Highways maintenance men are continually hauling truck loads of junk from the side of the road to the places where junk should be dumped. It is taking a great deal of their time away from their jobs of maintaining the roadway just to keep the litter and debris picked up so that the road will be sanitary and will not distract from the beauty of the scenery.

Still, as we drive down the highways, we get the idea that the public is using the right-of-way for a public junk yard. Beer bottles, boxes of trash, worn out tires, and even old broken down autos litter the edges of the roads throughout the state.

You will probably wonder what this has to do with you. You can help keep the maintenance man from acting as garbage collector if you will retain your trash in some sort of a container and put it in your trash barrel at home, instead of throwing it out the window of the car as you drive along.

This is a definite factor in safety of the highways also. There have been several accidents in the state this year, caused by running over a beer bottle that had been thrown from a car. The beer bottle has ruined a tire and in several instances, has smashed a car and injured some of the occupants. The beer bottles have become so thick that there are those who are making money for themselves by going along and picking them up. It would be better for all concerned if these persons could go to the junk yard and find them — better for each of us and for them.

You would not appreciate anyone who threw an old tire in your front yard, and the public has the right to resent anyone throwing trash along the highway. It is the public front yard. — Dwight Crofford (Idaho Department of Highways).

Published Weekly by the Union Oil Service at Kendrick
W. L. "Bill" Rogers, Editor

HELLO, FOLKS:

Well, next Saturday is the Annual Sales Day, sponsored by the Kendrick Lion Club — and we expect to see you in town — that is — providing — of course — that you are not one of the fortunates to go on a big game hunting trip. Anyhow — when you come to town drive your car or pickup in here and leave it for a wash job, grease, and oil change while you attend the auction, view the game or sports program, attend the show, shop — or visit with friends. You are sure to like our products and our service.

A veteran cop riding in a police car with a rookie received a call to see to a fight in a bar.

Said the veteran cop: "Drive slow and when we get there they'll be all tired out and we'll just drag them into the wagon."

Chilly weather getting into your home? Keep it warm and comfortable with Union Stove Oil. Just call 1251 and we'll do the rest.

Teacher: "Can anyone tell me what is meant by the expression, 'A skeleton in the cupboard?'"
Willie: "Yes, ma'am, a chicken after the second day's dinner!"

Is your car, truck or pickup ready for winter? Does it have that wonderful Royal Triton in the crankcase and Prestone in the radiator, if not, bring it in. We'll take care of both jobs!

There is no substitute for good lubricants! We handle them.

Bird Season Open Oct. 23

In this area pheasant season opens on October 23, with shooting beginning at noon on the opening day. The waterfowl season opens statewide on Oct. 16 (also noon shooting on opening day).

Copies of the official regulations for both pheasants and waterfowl are available at authorized license vendors.

For the first time in many years, Idaho goose hunters over most of the state may this year shoot snow geese. For all counties except Clark, Fremont, Madison and Teton, the bag and possession limit for geese is six, including not more than three birds of the dark species.

In counties where the snow goose is legal game, hunters should hold their fire until they can see the bird clearly. The snow goose has conspicuous black wing tips. If the bird appears to be all white, the hunter should play safe and let it go, rather than risk bringing down a whistling swan or some other protected white bird. There is a heavy penalty for the killing of swan.

Weather Holds Fair

Weather this past week has been all that farmers and sportsmen alike could hope for considering the time of the year.

Following a heavy frost Wednesday evening of last week several bright, sunshiny days followed. Most farmers having beans in the field welcomed the frost, as it put a real stop to growing, and tended toward dryness in the vines. It was not so welcome, however, to producers of tomatoes and melons, for it marked the end of that crop, which has been unseasonably late.

Sportsmen welcomed the frost, as it meant cool nights for the safe keeping of meat — a big item when in the woods with a kill.

Get that fresh Salmon, Halibut or Oysters at Blewett's Market, Kendrick. Arrives every Thursday. adv
