About Village Well Work

It does not seem to be clear in the minds of many residents exactly what action the Village Trustees took in regard to improvements in the local water system, and here is just what happened:

They did not buy a new pump, but rather are having the previous pump rebuilt, with additional "staging" to permit lowering the pump into the well another 80 feet.

They did not trade in the 15 horsepower motor which drove the pump, but retained it and purchased a new 25 h. p. motor to care for the additional height through which the water must now be raised.

They did not purchase a new "booster pump" (to put the water up the hill to the reservoir, as the present one is adequate in capacity and power for the approximate 120 gallons per minute which the new equipment is expected to give, and which should prove adequate for village needs in the future.

In retaining the 15 h. p. motor the trustees felt that should another well become a necessity, a large portion of the cost of equipping such a well would already have been paid — and to us this seems good reasoning.

Wonderful Winter Weather

The weather this past week has certainly been all that anyone could wish for January — and we understand that several rather severe cases of "spring fever" have shown up — not to mention the general cold, which is a very "popular item" at the present time.

Anyhow, we have had some beautiful weather. Sunday was undoubtedly the warmest day this year. During the period of bright sunshine, which lasted for some three to four hours it was possible to be comfortable without a jacket (providing you were in the sun), and several residents were seen working about their homes in shirt sleeves.

Of course, during the week, we have had rain squalls and some wind, but on the whole, "warm and cloudy."

Roads In Poor Condition

The weather of the past few weeks has given deep concern to road maintenance workers throughout this area. Frost leaving the ground soft, wet snow followed by pouring rains, all have combined to make a nightmare for road workers.

Even the long-established road between Juliaetta and Kendrick is beginning to break up quite badly under the impact of weather and heavy traffic. But perhaps the break-up of this road would be all to the good — for maybe the state might rebuild it. We witnessed such a condition on the old Bear Creek bridge just east of town. Nothing was done to that venerable structure until a loaded logging truck went through it — then a long-overdue new bridge and approach were built by the state.

When making a trip into Kendrick in November of 1929, a gang of surveyors were seen working between Kendrick and Juliaetta, and we don't know how many times the road has been surveyed between these two towns since that time, but it is our firm belief that if all the stakes driven were laid end to end they would reach from Kendrick to Juliaetta — and still no real road.

So, a real break-up of the road would undoubtedly bring another survey crew — and possibly a road — although we'll believe the state will build that road when we see actual work begun.

We were told, following the big washout of Brady Gulch in the '30's and the construction of the new bridge there — and approaches — that the road was on the program for the following year — but that year never came.

Oh, well, we can hope, can't we?

Cub Scouts Hold Pack Meet

A Cub Scout Pack meeting was held Monday evening in the Fire Hall, with the theme "Pirate Waters." All Cubs were dressed as pirates and presented a "pirate skit."

Badges were awarded as follows: Bobby Nelson, Wolff badge; Roger Nelson, Lion badge and Gold and Silver Arrow Points. All Cubs were presented registration cards for the coming year.

A Pack committee meeting followed with Geo. Brocke, Jr., being chosen treasurer and Bud Fey, secretary. Plans were also made for the annual Blue & Gold dinner, Feb. 13th.

Tack a New Room Onto Your House

Only three hours time and $11.50 built this extra winter room

Hundreds of home owners are discovering an easy, low cost way of turning cold windswept porches and breezeways into warm extra rooms that can be used all winter long.

A pair of scissors, hammer, tacks, molding strips and a roll of crystal-clear Flex-O-Glass, is all that it takes to make this extra room of plastic.

If your porch happens to have screens, leave them up. Just cut to size and tack it right over them. Otherwise, simply tack the shatterproof plastic between uprights. When spring comes, take it down and store it away to be used next season. It's guaranteed two years.

A porch enclosed with this crystal-clear plastic, at a fraction of the cost of common glass, is especially valuable as a children's playroom because Flex-O-Glass is unbreakable and lets in Sunshine Vitamin D (Ultra-Violet Rays) which common glass filters out. Local dealers here carry Flex-O-Glass in rolls.

Racket Built on Soil Test Misuse

Cheap Fertilizer Not Always Saving

There's a new racket in some states and the University of Illinois has been warning farmers in that state to avoid being taken in.

Pointing to a misuse of the soil test, the University advises farmers to be cautious when approached by salesmen selling cheap fertilizer. The cost is quoted substantially below local market or even wholesale prices. But there's a catch:

The only way you can get this fertilizer at the reduced price is to sign up to have your soils tested and then apply the fertilizer in accordance with their recommendations.

The prospects of getting fertilizer "cheaper than wholesale" is a tempting idea, but often the deal carries with it some requirements not always to the farmer's best interests. The wise farmer investigates before signing contracts for services or supplies.

Farmers are advised not to sign any soil testing service or fertilizer sales contract without first consulting their farm adviser to find out if they are dealing with a well known firm or accredited soil testing laboratory.

As a general rule, soil testing laboratories and fertilizer companies don't require the farmer to sign service or purchase contracts.

A soil test is worthless unless the test has been carefully calibrated in terms of crop response by carefully conducted field experiments.

High Salt Tolerance Found in Alfalfa

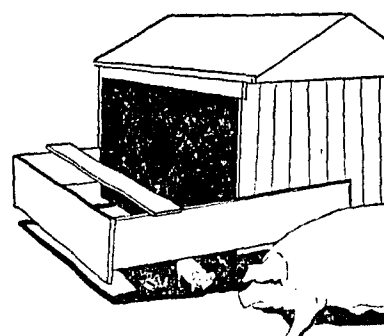

An unusually high salt tolerance was found to be characteristic of alfalfa in tests at the U. S. Department of Agriculture's Salinity Laboratory at Riverside, California.

The USDA says the alfalfa has a higher salt tolerance than any other common legume, with the possible exception of birdsfoot trefoil. Alfalfa evidently can withstand appreciable salt concentrations without showing any symptoms of necrosis, or leaf burning.

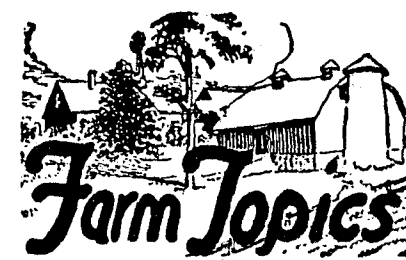

Plants grown on soil having heavy concentrations of salt were small and had a dark blue-green color, which became more evident as the salt concentration increased. In other aspects, however, the plants appeared to be normal.

Much of the soil in the West is high in salt, which makes the growing of many crops difficult. Alfalfa is the principal forage crop throughout this area. More than 20 per cent of the total irrigated land in 17 western states is devoted to its cultivation. Thus, alfalfa's outstanding ability to grow on salty land is highly important to the farm economy of the region.

Sow Proof

Keeping sows out of self-feeders can be done in many ways. Here it is done by nailing 2x12's across ends of feeder, then nailing boards across the ends of these planks. Extensions are low enough to keep out sows and gilts.

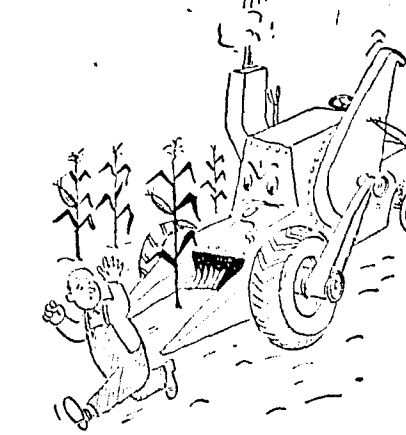

Corn Picker Is Deadly Machine

Few Safety Measures Will Prevent Harm

How many times recently have you noticed shocking newspaper headlines? Newspaper headlines are often shocking, but they strike closer to home when we associate ourselves with them. Every farmer will turn his attention to a story when the headline reads: "Farmer Fatally Injured in Picker Accident," or "Farmer Loses Hand in Corn Picker."

These headlines, so often seen in the fall, always report a story that should never have happened—and would not have happened had a few simple safety rules been followed.

How can you lose fingers or a hand to a picker? It's easy, just

The corn picker is perhaps the most dangerous of all farm machinery. The picker won't actually chase you as it does the farmer in the above illustration, but it should be considered the dangerous threat that it is.

reach into it while it is running or try to remove stalks that lodge in the snapping or husking rolls without shutting off the power. Using a stalk or a stick is a good way to get hurt, too. The rolls grab so quickly they can jerk your hand and stalk in before you let go.

If you want to be safe, develop the habit of shutting off the power each time you leave the tractor seat. Keep the guards in place and never operate without the shields. If any part of your clothing touches an unguarded shaft or coupling, you can be drawn in without warning.

Watch Shipping Fever When Moving Cattle

Moving feeder cattle from range country to feedlots is one of the most hazardous activities in the livestock industry from the standpoint of animal health, the American Veterinary Medical Association warns.

Shipping fever, a respiratory infection which the animals are made more susceptible by the excitement and exhaustion that goes with the transportation of cattle, takes a heavy toll in death losses and dollar-and-cent losses in the form of lost weight.

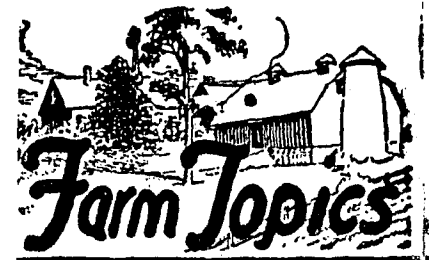

Lowered resistance brought on by changes in water, feed and climatic conditions, along with crowded travel and not too gentle handling favor attacks of this disease. Shipping fever often is compared with flu in human beings. It strikes quickly causing a soft cough, high temperature and a general depression in the animal; appetite is lost, there's a nasal discharge and watery, reddened eyes. If not treated early, pneumonia often develops.

Treatment is usually very effective but it varies with the secondary infections involved in the outbreak. Veterinarians prescribe treatment only after thorough examination of the herd.

Lamb Dryer

You can dry out lambs quickly by putting an old half-barrel under a heat lamp. Fill the barrel only part way so the ewe can see lambs over the side and won't refuse them later.

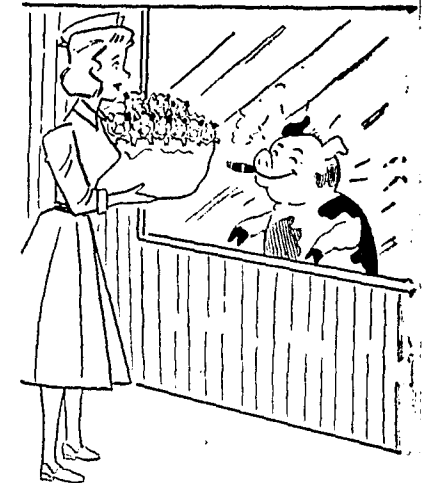

Antibiotic Gives Pigs Good Start

Aureomycin Fed Sow For Healthy Litter

An extra pig or two per litter resulted when the diet of the mother sow was supplemented with an antibiotic during her gestation. N. R. Ellis of the U.S. Department of Agriculture reported to the International Conference on the Use of Antibiotics in Agriculture.

The extra pigs were due to birth of more live pigs and better ability of the pigs to survive until weaned, Ellis said. He emphasized that the inclusion of Aureomycin in the gestation ration neither increased the number of embryos nor the birth weight of the pigs.

Papa pig can be real proud, but it's science that is leading the way to bigger and more successful litters. Antibiotics may become standard for use both during reproductive and growth period of animals.

Antibiotics have been widely tested and have proved highly successful as additives to the rations of growing animals, but results of research with swine at USDA's Agricultural Research Center, Beltsville, Md., have been among the first positive evidences of the value of antibiotics during the reproductive period of animal life.

Several tests have indicated some beneficial carry-over effects in chicks hatched from eggs of hens fed on an antibiotic-containing diet. Researchers now feel reasonably sure, Ellis reported, that antibiotics produce no more harmful effects when fed to swine and poultry during the reproductive cycle than when fed to these animals during the growth period.

Green Chopper Is Not Always Profitable

Planning on operating a green chopper next season? If so, lay your plans carefully, advises C. R. Hoglund, a farm research economist at Michigan State University.

Hoglund figures a 30-cow herd would be best in order to cover the extra costs of green chopping. The economist came to this conclusion after a study of 42 dairy farms in the state.

Hoglund believes, however, that chopping may be profitable with a 20-cow herd if the animals are high producers—10,000 pounds or better; or if the cows would have to cross a dangerous highway from pasture to the barn.

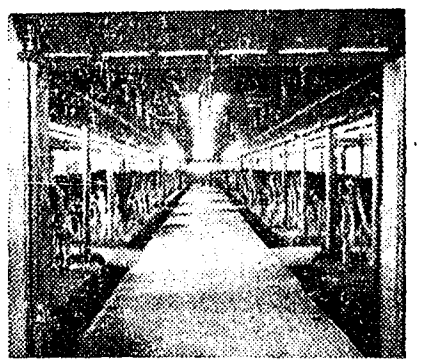

But other things are necessary, too, for best results, he says. Farmers should have skill in operating machinery.

So, Hoglund indicates, green chopping will be profitable for only a limited number of farmers. For farmers who cannot profitably green chop, these suggestions are offered:

Consider strip grazing as a substitute to get many of the benefits of green chopping.

Develop a good system of grazing practices, which provides for about one ton of grass silage per cow to supplement pastures.

Assembly Line

Assembly-line techniques well-known in manufacturing are applied to this modern barn operation. Conveyor-type barn cleaner moves along gutter at rear of each stall to a point where it is deposited in the basement directly into the manure cleaner.

Weather Guides Farming Success

Watch Cutting Time For Your Hay Crops

When a farmer wants to know whether or not he should cut hay crops such as alfalfa and clover, he should do two things: check the sky for immediate weather possibilities; and then check his barometer for warnings of coming storms.

Barometers are a valuable tool for predicting local farm weather conditions for the next 12 to 24 hours since radio broadcasts from the city often don't apply to people out in the country. Alfalfa and clover depreciate rapidly if they are wet after cutting, or they can be dangerous fire hazards if they are rushed into the barn before proper curing. Since it takes an average of 24 hours for these crops to cure, weather predictions for that period of time are important.

Check the sky before mounting the mower on your tractor. You may see that there is no storm in the sky at the moment, but because hay and grain must cure at least 24 hours before it can be baled and piled in the barn, you should consider tomorrow's conditions.

This holds true for virtually every type of farmer. There are few people in the world who must make more daily decisions that depend on weather than farmers. Income for an entire season can be at the mercy of the skies. Haying, plowing, planting and spraying all depend on wet and dry weather conditions.

Smooth Changeover Best When Moving Pullets

The change from range conditions to laying house confinement of pullets should be made without a major disturbance in the flock, says the American Foundation for Animal Health.

If the change-over from range to laying house is smooth, pullets will winter better and lay more eggs. Steps that make the change-over easy on the pullets are outlined as follows:

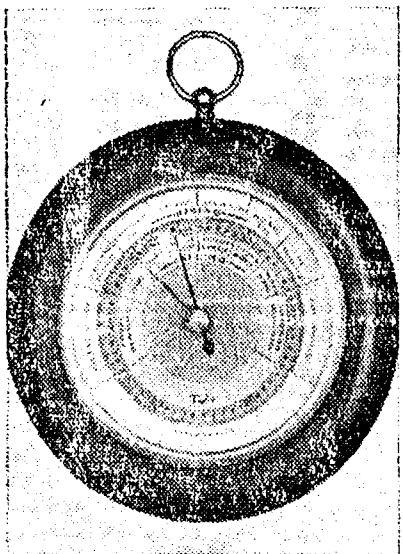

1. Change feed gradually. Continue the range ration immediately after housing and change slowly to the laying ration. Supply plenty of water.

2. Encourage use of community nests. Start with nests on floor and raise them gradually to normal height.

3. Leave windows in poultry house open to help "harden" the birds for winter conditions. Leave windows open until temperatures drop below freezing to help birds get accustomed to severe winter temperatures.

4. Start a culling program and continue it all year. Severe culling should not be necessary if the pullet chicks were of good breeding and they were well managed during their growth period.

Weather Warmer

This Stormguide barometer dial gives detailed predictions for coming weather under both rising and falling barometer conditions. Instead of the "rain-change-fair" dial indicates 16 specific weather conditions.

Winter Car Care Important

Too often, says the State Safety Council, drivers tend to neglect their car, just when care is most important. For example, in cold or rainy weather the driver dislikes to roll down the window and give the proper signal for turns or stops. He "takes a chance" that turn signals or stop lights are working properly — when all too frequently severe travel conditions may have caused their failure — and an accident can result.

Be sure your turn signals and stop lights are in proper working order. Inspect them frequently. Be sure your heater and defroster are doing a thorough job — for a steamy windshield or side windows can block your vision effectively.

Be sure your brakes are working properly, windshield wipers at peak efficiency and that your tires have a good tread — and carry chains — there are times when nothing else will do the job of chains!

A few minutes spent inspecting your car and a brief stop at a good service station may mean the difference between a safe trip and an accident!

THE Bull itin

Published Weekly by the Union Oil Service at Kendrick
W. L. "Bill" Rogers, Editor

HELLO, FOLKS:

Has "Spring sprung?" Is it at hand? Frankly, we don't know, but we do know that a stove fired with our Union Burner Oil feels mighty good these mornings and evenings — and we know that you can be assured of the same fine even warmth if your tank is full of our product. Don't be lulled into running out. Just call us at 1251 and say "Fill 'er up." We'll do the rest!

She: "My friends think it's odd that I'm so fond of pancakes, so they sent me to you."

Psychiatrist: "Why that's not odd at all. I'm fond of them myself." Brightening, she said: "Oh, you are? Well, you must come over some day. I've got five trunks full."

Yes, mud, slime and slush is with us, and that's when those famous U. S. Royal Mud and Snow tires really show their worth. So if you're slipping and sliding about, come in and let us show you these wonderful tires. You'll be surprised at how little they cost.

In a night club, a girl wearing an extremely low-cut gown was pointed out by one young swain to another: "That girl," said the first, "is wearing a $500 gown." "Possibly," replied his friend, "but you can see her heart isn't in it."

Does your car need washing and waxing? Is the color beginning to disappear under the mud? If so, bring it to us. We'll do a first class job, and vacuum clean the interior too!

Issues Road Warning

E. E. Flomer of the Nez Perce county highway district has issued another warning to what he terms "Night Riders," or truck operators who sneak in over-weight loads after dark, and sometimes during the very early morning hours.

Mr. Flomer warns that the five-ton gross load limit is very much in effect and that anyone caught violating it will be prosecuted to the limit of the law. He goes on to point out that the roads are not only for truck operators but for everyone, that they represent a high investment in dollars and cents, and must be protected.
