C. V. at Genesee Friday As Bulldogs Open Football Season

"If we don't have any injuries, we just might be OK," predicted Genesee coach Ozzie Kanikkeberg, as he prepared to send his 1974 GHS Buildogs into the football wars this week. Genesee opens the season by meeting the Clearwater Valley Rams in a non-league contest Friday night at Gen-

Back with Kanikkeberg again are 14 Bulldogs from last year who lettered and started "in one way or another." Also on the plus side is one of the youngest and strongest backfields in the District . . . three jun-iors and one senior, all of whom saw plenty of action last year.
On the minus side is the fact that

Genesee High turned out only 28 football hopefuls this year, the smallest number in many a season. "Depth?... What's that?", Kanikkeberg jokingly responded when asked about his reserve strength this year. Barring any injuries, Kanikkeberg indicated he would start the following Miss.; 26 grandchildren and five great players in the Friday game, Left end, Wayne Jensen; tackle, Mike Becker; guard, Keith Davis; center, Darrel Tyler; right guard; Jim Baumgart-

Running backs will be junior Jay Roach and senior Loren Mor-scheck. Junior Don Smith will be at the flanker spot.

Corey Firzlaff will do the punting and Mike Becker will handle the kickoffs for the Bulldogs.

Symms Says: There Is An Answer To

One would imagine that the American people are weary of the political rhetoric consistently bombarding them concerning inflation. It seems as though everyone in government is against inflation but nobody is doing anything about it.

Recently, the taxpayer was forced to foot the bill for $100,000 worth of additional inflation rhetoric when the House passed a resolution authorizing a six-month "emergency study" of the causes and effects of inflation. The measure passed the U.S. Senate July 9th.

One would think there must be something very mystical and elu-

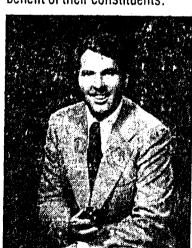

"No Mystery About Inflation"

sive about inflation the way politicians keep carrying on. In reality, it is one of the most simple and basic of all economic phenomena. The literal meaning of "inflate" is "to increase the volume from within." When we speak of monetary inflation — the erosion of the buying power of our money — we are referring to the process of increasing the volume of currency (and credit) in circulation. The federal government does this by spending in excess of that which it takes in from direct taxation. The deficit is made up by printing additional new dollars, thus decreasing the value of each dollar we hold. Inflation is in reality nothing more than a very clever hidden form of government taxation. Price inflation is one of the effects of monetary inflation.

So, does Congress need to spend $100,000 to further "It's Naked Rhetoric" explore the nature of inflation? Hardly. Congress knows inflation as a mother knows her child. This so-called "inflation study" is nothing more than naked political rhetoric. It was conceived as a way in which Members of Congress could show their "deep concern" over inflation for the benefit of their constituents.

CONGRESSMAN STEVE SYMMS

If these Congressmen were really concerned about inflation. they would stop the rhetoric and begin to demonstrate fiscal responsibility for a change. They would stop paying only lip service to the need for a balanced budget and instead begin work toward that end. Everyone in Washington, D.C. says deficit spending is bad, yet precious few will specify how and where they will cut back on federal spending, Instead, Congress votes to spend ever more inflationary dollars. Measures such as I have introduced. calling for a Constitutional Amendment to stop deficit spending and balance the budget, are bottled up in committees chaired and controlled by the Majority Party. Meanwhile, measures which serve only to turn up the volume on the rhetoric breeze through both Chambers of Congress.

There is, I suppose, a good side to all of this. By authorizing the $100,000 venture, Congress did an excellent job of identifying the cause of inflation right there on the floor of the House. It didn't need the services of a single bureaucrat or government economist either. The point was made better than any "study group" could make it - that the cause of inflation lies with Congress itself, which continues to spend money it doesn't have on programs its doesn't need. One doubts, however, that Members of Congress got the message.

"The Cause Is Congress"

I want to continue emphasizing that message!
