

Big Dance of Season

Dance Feb. 23 a Success—49 Numbers Sold—Fine Supper—It Pays to Advertise

The dance given by Ld Clark on Friday night, Feb. 23 in the Juliaetta Opera House was a big success in every way.

Dances given in honor of our country's father are usually well attended and this was no exception to the rule. Forty nine numbers were sold with considerably more than a hundred persons in attendance. Genesee, Kendrick, Fix, American and Potlatch ridges contributed liberally of the young people there.

The Juliaetta orchestra drew forth music that made hearts and feet alike grow light. A refreshing supper, was served at Perryman's confectionery store.

The dance continued until a very late hour, the happy throng being reluctant to turning their faces homeward.

Another one of these big dances will be given under this same management Friday, March 16th.

Good Roads

A Good Roads meeting was held in the Odd Fellows hall Saturday afternoon, when the Highway District was discussed at length. The movement is meeting with very little resistance in this part of the county. Many of our most substantial farmers are now enthusiastically working for good roads. The following committee was selected to attend the G. R. school: Geo. Daugherty, Frank Taylor, Homer Grove, Walter Clark, Columbus Clark, and E. W. Porter.

W. O. W. Social

The Woodman camp of Juliaetta will give a social to all members and their families at the W. O. W. hall March 14, 1917.

The management is arranging to make this an evening not soon to be forgotten. If you are not a member, send in your name and make obeisance to the "goat" before March 14.

The program will consist of music by the orchestra, piano solos, readings, male quartets, etc. A luncheon will be served after which the evening will be spent at cards.

All members not present and failing to give a reasonable excuse will be initiated in due manner at a later date.

For Chapped Skin

Cut four ounces of glycerine with four ounces spirits of camphor, shaking thoroughly and allowing it to stand over night. Then add one pint of rose water shaking thoroughly. If after standing there is a scum of camphor gum strain through a cloth. A simple preparation, is it not? But the most effective thing I ever found for the purpose, and the very nicest to use. If you wish to whiten as well as soften the hands dissolve six grains of corrosive sublimate in a little alcohol and add to the mixture before pouring in the rose water. Corrosive sublimate is deadly poison, but this tiny proportion is harmless as the proportion of strychnine we are told our bread contains.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL

C. V. Canfield, employed by the Denny Fruit Co., of North Yakima, Wash., and wife are visiting the former's parents, Rev. and Mrs. Canfield. Mr. Canfield is buying and shipping potatoes, eggs, butter, etc. from Juliaetta and other towns in northern Idaho.

Big Washington Soc

George Washington Social a Success—Church Artfully Decorated—Neat Little Sum Netted

The George Washington social at the Christian church on the night of the 22, was pronounced a success by those present to be a gratifying success. W. S. Larkin represented George Washington, being dressed in the old colonial style, and greeting everyone as they arrived with genuine old hospitality.

The church was artfully decorated with the national colors, while enumerable hatchets were appropriately displayed. The attendance was large and a neat little sum was netted the church. The only difficulty that presented itself was a lack of baskets, a number of young men not being lucky enough to secure one.

One of the most entertaining features of the evening was a sewing contest. The prize was won by Dr. Laughbaum, J. D. Hampton and I. J. Odem. The prize was a cherry pie which Mr. Odem was to cut and serve, while Laughbaum and Hampton were to do justice to this delicacy. As the pie consisted mostly of cotton batton, we are wondering how well these gentlemen performed their parts.

That was the worst part of it all—the waiting. Heart-rending reports of happenings in many Belgian villages came to the British, for Courvoisier was only one of many hamlets that had tragedies to relate. And the British were powerless to aid those stricken people.

Trench 27—the English trench which Streetman had indicated upon his map as being the key to the enemy's defense—lay in the first line of the British. All unconscious of any special designs that the Germans might have against their particular position, the Tommies stationed there proceeded to put things in shape for the general action that was bound to come. After completing their grim arrangements, there was little for them to do for the time being, except rest. And that they were glad enough to do, after their herculean exertions of those first days of the war. That there was worse ahead of them they did not doubt. But in the meantime there was no reason why they should not make themselves at home.

It was night—the second night following that fatal day when the Germans descended upon the Lion d'Or and robbed Jeanne Christophe of her father. In Trench 27 four soldiers were playing poker under the shelter of a bombproof hut that they had constructed by digging into a side of the ditch. Dirty, unshaven, begrimed, they were nevertheless enjoying to the full their well-earned respite. And the flickering light of the candle which stood upon their rude table revealed no fear upon the face of any of them.

At either end of the trench two men stood guard, while close at hand a periscope lay upon a makeshift bench, ready for instant use in case the watchers should detect any unusual and suspicious movements in front of the trench. Out there beneath the stars the Germans had already dug themselves in. And in testimony of their alertness the Germans continually played a searchlight upon the British position. That prying shaft of light was never still. Now it swept the top of Trench 27, now flickered upon a tree close by, and then searched the intervening ground between the two lines in an effort to detect some venturesome observer.

To the four privates in the bombproof shelter there came a momentary interruption, in the shape of a lieutenant, who sauntered into their trench from the left. This youthful officer, whom they had already voted "a bit of all-right," observed them pleasantly.

"Hello, boys!" he said. They sprang up and saluted, murmuring "Good evening, sir!" "How's the game?" the lieutenant inquired.

"Henry, there, is winning all our cigarettes," one of the men said. The young officer smiled. And then, drawing a pencil and a postcard from his pocket, he seated himself and proceeded to write a note to a young woman in London. For Guy Falconer had, consistently kept his promise to write Georgy every day. The privates promptly resumed their poker game.

"I raise it one cigarette," one of them said. And again Guy smiled. He was glad that his boys were enjoying themselves.

So engrossed did Lieutenant Falconer become in his note to his lady love that he did not notice when his captain appeared, in the company of a civilian. Captain Montague paused and turned to his guest.

"Now, Mr. Brown," he said, "you're in the first line of the English trenches—Trench 27—and I may say you're the only American correspondent who has had this experience."

Charlie Brown looked about with undisguised interest. "And I rather butted in," he remarked.

"Well, as long as you stumbled inside our lines, you might as well see something, if you give me your word not to write anything."

"That's a nice thing to say to a newspaper man," Charlie retorted. "But I have your word?"

"I s'pose so!" It cost Mr. Brown some effort to promise that. He saw the makings of a bully scoop before him. And he hated to forego such a wonderful opportunity.

"The closer you are to the front, the less you know of what's happening," Captain Montague resumed, "except on your own very small square of a very large checkerboard. . . . But, technically, you are under fire."

"Am I?" Mr. Brown was surprised at that. "Somehow, I don't feel any different," he said.

"You would if you stuck your head over that trench and they happened to see it," the captain told him grimly. "Well—believe me, I'm not going to," said Charlie. "Aren't they unusually quiet tonight?"

"Yes, rather! But always before the evening's over they give us a bit of fireworks and go for some of our men with a lucky shrapnel or two. You see, they try to get our range in the daytime, and then at night they shoot at the same range."

Charlie Brown and his escort had not talked long before Guy Falconer came out of his abstraction. He raised his head all at once and looked inquiringly at the civilian. Then he jumped up and approached Charlie with outstretched hand.

"I thought I recognized that voice!" he exclaimed. "Do you remember me, Charlie Brown?"

"Hello, Guy!" the delighted American cried. "So you did come over to the front, after all? Didn't I say you would?"

"Yes! I came over with the first batch—bribed the recruiting sergeant! And here I am! . . . But what are you doing at the front?"

Charlie explained how he had fallen into the hands of the Germans, how they had let him free and started him toward Brussels. But his rebellious nature had revolted; and having hidden by day and traveled by night, he had made straight for the place where he understood the British to be entrenched.

Mr. Brown had scarcely finished his brief recital when there followed an ominous whistle, which seemed to come from over his head. Off in the distance there was a flash and an explosion.

"What's that?" the American asked. "Oh, just one of our shells traveling somewhere to our friends, the enemy," the captain informed him.

"That will probably start their evening song," Guy remarked.

"They needn't hurry on my account," Charlie said.

For a few minutes they stood there, discussing the war.

"What's it for?" the newspaper man asked. "There's no individual hatred—no great, soul-stirring emotional crisis behind it all."

"But England was forced into it," Captain Montague interposed.

"And I dare say France and Russia and Austria all feel they were forced into it, too," Charlie replied. "That's the whole trouble. Each nation believes honestly that it's in the right, and in some way I suppose each of them is. . . . I don't know—I'm not a big enough man to attempt to say. . . . And what good is it all?"

"It is that militarism shall cease—that never again can there be another war like this," the English captain told him. As they talked, a doctor, accompanied by two stretcher bearers, entered the trench, and, finding that there was no need for their services in that quarter, they passed on.

"That's the Red Cross," Captain Montague explained, noticing the journalist's interest in the trio. Following close upon his words came another of those sinister whistles.

"That's one of their shells!" the captain continued, meaning the Germans.

At the information Mr. Brown promptly ducked and huddled down upon the bench under the overhang of the trench.

"You needn't duck, old man! It wouldn't do you any good," the elder officer remarked. "Anyway, that shell was on its way toward one of our batteries," he added, pointing to their rear.

"Well, now they've started, anyhow," Guy said.

"Sometimes they fire only one or two shots—and then again they go on all night," his senior officer explained.

Stepping to the field telephone, which rang insistently, Captain Montague received a message from the battery posted some distance behind.

When Guy Falconer learned that some light bombs were to be let off, he begged the captain to let him climb the tree that rose near one end of the trench, in order that he might try to get the range of the German guns.

The captain did not like the idea. He had been cautioned not to expose his men—and especially his officers—unnecessarily. And he warned Guy that he might get picked off by a German sniper.

"Not a chance!" Guy protested. "Please! It would be ripping really to do something."

The captain perceived that the inaction of waiting for an attack was fast setting Guy's nerves on edge. And at last he gave his consent.

For a little time Guy called out directions to the captain, who stood at the telephone relaying Guy's instructions to the battery. In the light furnished by the British bombs the youthful lieutenant carefully watched the effect of the shells that whistled over their heads and burst increasingly nearer to the Teuton artillery.

"Right on a gun!" Guy shouted at last. "I saw it crumple! That's it! Keep the range at twenty-nine fifty!"

The words were hardly out of his mouth before he came toppling from his perch. The captain and one of the privates caught the limp figure just before it struck the ground, and they laid him tenderly upon the dirt floor of Trench 27.

"They've got him. . . . He's not dead, though. . . . Captain Montague knelt beside the lad and bent over him. And a corporal with some knowledge of first-aid procedure undertook to stop Guy's bleeding. He was seriously wounded—that much was clear. And he was unconscious.

"Bestly dull!" so Guy had been writing Georgy Wagstaff. "Awfully hot—no excitement. Haven't seen a German or any decent food. But that doesn't matter. Tell mother I'm being careful."

"Poor kid!" Charlie Brown exclaimed. It was a grim business—war!

"Sad—very sad!" the captain agreed. "But perhaps he'll pull through; and if he doesn't—well! forgive me, Mr. Brown, if I seem heartless—but remember! this is new to you and he's only one, and I've seen so many!"

Captain Montague noticed that the American correspondent was white and somewhat unsteady. "I feel a bit shaken. Do you mind if I go back now?" Charlie asked.

"Certainly not!"

"If I come across the surgeon or any of the Red Cross, you don't mind if I send them back, do you?" Charlie wanted to do what he could to help his friend.

The captain readily gave his assent. "I'm through with war," Charlie Brown said as he shook hands with Montague. "I'm off to London. I'll see his mother there, and that kid girl of his—and then go to New York, where there's no war, thank God!"

And you know, Cap, when I'm home, sitting at my desk, looking down over Broadway where war only means some more headlines on the front page about some unpronounceable places, and you turn over the paper to see how stocks closed, or who won the game—when I'm back there and the war stuff comes over the wire, I'll be thinking of you fellows over here under fire, and I'll be wishing you luck, old man, the best of luck!"

The captain thanked him; and they said good-by.

Charlie lingered for one last look at the wounded Guy.

"I hope you pull through, old boy!" he said; he knew, though, that Guy could not hear him. "Do what you can for him, won't you?" he asked the captain. "I know his mother. . . . This whole business is hell, isn't it?"

CHAPTER XXII.

A Meeting in the Trenches.

Charlie Brown had gone, and Captain Montague had ordered his men to place Guy upon a heap of straw, where he must lie until the doctor came. In Trench 27 an atmosphere of sadness had succeeded the air of light-hearted carelessness that Charlie Brown had found when he arrived there. The candle still flickered upon the table round which the poker players had lately sat. But all thought of that frivolous game had vanished from their minds. It was not that they had not already seen many of their men shot down. But Guy Falconer had quickly endeared himself to all—officers and enlisted men alike. And now that he had received his billet, in the German bullet, there was not one soul in Trench 27 that was not both sobered and sad.

But they had little time to bestow upon a contemplation of war's horrors. Five minutes had scarcely elapsed after Charlie Brown's departure when a sergeant appeared, holding a prisoner by the arm.

It was Streetman—that prisoner. And he was far from presenting the jaunty figure that usually distinguished him. His clothing—civilian clothing—was badly torn, his face was scratched and dirty, and his right arm was in a sling. The man's hat was gone, too.

The sergeant reported to his captain that while on patrol duty he had caught the fellow skulking around.

"He came from the German lines," he said.

Captain Montague held the candle to Streetman's face.

"And in civilian's clothes! A spy, eh?" he exclaimed.

"No, no, captain! An Englishman—a loyal Englishman!" Streetman protested.

They searched him; but found nothing of importance.

"He's got some kind of cock-and-bull story about being wounded and then—" the sergeant started to say, when Streetman interrupted him.

"Never mind that! I tell you I've information that's vital to England," he insisted.

But the captain was still suspicious of him.

"My name's Lee—Walter Lee," Streetman asserted, "formerly of the British army. I've been in business in Belgium—the automobile business. My papers there will prove what I say. The Germans took my factory—kept me prisoner all night in the cellar. That's when I learned their plans from some major—Major von Brenig and a Captain Karl. I could listen to them talking—there were holes in the floor from that shell fire. I realized what it would mean to England if I could bring word to the British army of this secret plan of the Germans. During the night I managed to escape through the cellar window. They followed me, and I got one of their bayonets in the shoulder. They left me for dead; but

"An Englishman—a Loyal Englishman!" Streetman Protested.

It was only a flesh wound. And for the last twenty hours I've been seeking the British position somewhere near Trench 27—for that's the vital spot—when your sergeant caught me."

"Trench 27, eh?" the captain said.

"Yes!" Streetman answered eagerly. "Is it near here?"

"Yes," the captain answered, "it is not far from here. You are not questioning me, Captain Montague, are you?"

"So you won't believe me? Yes, you've looked at my papers. Don't they convince you?"

"Papers are easily forged," Montague told him. "Still, he was somewhat impressed by the other's glib tale and he allowed the captive to proceed with his story.

"The Germans are to attack tonight in force at your Trench 27, in the hope of cutting through the British lines," Streetman continued. "Your only chance is to bring up every possible man to protect that trench. Otherwise we'll be beaten. You see what it means. . . . Ah! There's your field telephone! Let me communicate with headquarters! They'll understand!"

He started for the telephone.

But Captain Montague sprang in front of him.

"Keep away from that instrument!" he commanded. And, turning to the sergeant, he ordered him to take the prisoner to headquarters. "You can explain to them," he informed Streetman.

"By then it may be too late," the fellow replied. "Their attack was to be at midnight."

"Indeed!" the English officer exclaimed dryly. "It's past midnight now." And straightway he became more doubtful than ever of the stranger's story.

"Then they're likely to charge any minute," the spy declared with well-simulated alarm. "I've got to telephone. It's for England! I beg of you to believe me! Let me inform headquarters—let them decide! Do you dare take the responsibility?"

One of the privates on guard suddenly called out.

"Somethin' crawlin' out there, captain! Looks like a man!"

The sergeant faced to the front, with gun ready for action.

"He's comin' this way!" another soldier cried.

Streetman saw another chance for his plan to succeed, and he quickly seized it.

"You see, captain, it's the start of their attack!" he said excitedly. "For God's sake, let me telephone!" he begged.

At last Captain Montague was convinced.

"Quickly then—telephone!" he said. And while Streetman sprang to the instrument, the British officer ordered his men to their stations. "Keep your eyes open—and give 'em the best we've got!" he urged them.

Meanwhile, out there in the moonlight between the two lines of trenches, that dark figure crawled nearer. Rifle fire crackled out from the German watchers, and the skulker broke into a stumbling run.

"They're tryin' to pot him from the other side!" one of the Britishers cried.

"Another trick to fool us!" Captain Montague observed.

IDAHO NEWS NOTES

Winter again appeared Saturday at Lewiston.

Lewis county farmers recently organized the Nez Perce National Farm Loan Association.

The Coeur d'Alene district was in the grasp of the worst blizzard of the winter during Sunday.

Idaho white potatoes in sacks sold at $3.05 on track in Chicago Saturday, the highest price in history.

Initial steps for the organization of the Lewiston chapter of the American Red Cross have been taken.

Four war babies have been "adopted" by Kellogg organizations and will be cared for through the funds raised there.

The Oregon Packing company has awarded the contract for the construction of a branch cannery at Lewiston for $11,000.

Frank Myers, an old resident of Coeur d'Alene district, was found dead on the Mullan road Saturday. He had frozen to death.

The Bunker Hill & Sullivan smelter will be blown in May 1. The smelter company is convinced that the first $1,000,000 is but the beginning.

Theodore E. Martinson, alias C. E. Benton, who is wanted in Moscow on a charge of wronging his 15-year-old adopted daughter, was caught in Vancouver, B. C.

Eight corporations and 11 individuals were named in an indictment returned recently by the United States grand jury at Boise, for alleged conspiracy and unlawful combination in restraint of interstate commerce and in violation of the Sherman anti-trust act in the buying, selling, manufacture and shipping of creamery and dairy products. The indictment alleges that these operations injuriously affected the business of 172 independent concerns in nearly as many different towns, and caused injury to the general public, "but more particularly in Idaho, Montana, Utah, Washington, Oregon, Wyoming, Nevada and California."

Important changes are announced for the heads of state institutions as the result of a recent action by the governing board. Dr. W. F. Pike, a physician of Twin Falls, was elected medical superintendent of the Blackfoot asylum, to succeed Dr. D'Or Poynter.

R. H. Barnes, also of Twin Falls, has been elected to succeed at the soldiers' home, at Coeur d'Alene, the late R. H. Barnes, who for the last four years has been at the head of the home. Commandant Barnes is a prominent resident of Twin Falls and a veteran of the civil war.

The change is to take place at the home just as soon as Commandant Barnes can arrange his business affairs and come to Boise. R. L. Barton, former commandant, will probably return to his home at Coeur d'Alene.

In the Legislature.

After a bitter fight in the state senate the house workmen's compensation bill, introduced by Representatives Bates, Lehrbas and Grice, was killed Saturday by being indefinitely postponed. The vote to kill stood 20 to 14. This measure was the so-called labor bill, and called for compulsory workmen's compensation. Its defeat leaves but one bill of the same nature pending in the legislature, of the Rockwell elective workmen's compensation act. This bill is assured of passage, as it has the backing of the republicans and five democrats who refused to stand behind the Bates bill. When it is sent to the house of representatives a deadlock over its passage may result.

The house of representatives passed the most important bill pending in the legislature when it approved the $1,000,000 bond issue act providing for the building of good roads in the state. This act will make available for road construction in Idaho during the next two years a grand total of $2,750,000, of which $1,000,000 will be raised by the state, $1,250,000 by the counties, $335,000 from the federal post road act, and $135,000 from the forest service. It means the most promising era of good road building in the history of Idaho. The state bond issue is apportioned as follows:

Panhandle, $15,000; Bonner and Boundary counties, $50,000; North Pacific highway, $75,000; north and south highway, $375,000; Idaho-Montana highway, $120,000; Idaho-Pacific highway, $160,000; Yellowstone highway, $65,000; Idaho-Utah highway, $20,000.

The senate created the Tenth judicial district, to be formed out of Nez Perce, Idaho and Lewis counties, by passing house bill No. 18, by Giles, and at the same time passed house bill No. 12, by Welsh, giving to the Seventh judicial district an additional judge. It is understood that the governor will approve both bills.

The Clearwater dam and boom bill by Senator Grant, which is said to give relief to small timber holders, was passed by the house. It passed the senate some time ago.

IDAHO SNOWSLIDE KILLED 15 MINERS

SLEEPING VICTIMS BURIED IN RUINS OF BUNKHOUSE AT NORTH STAR MINE.

OVER 16 INJURED SERIOUSLY

Disaster at Mine 12 Miles Northeast of Hailey—Rescuers Face Peril—Danger of Another Slide, Workers Are Recalled.

Boise, Idaho.—Fifteen men were killed and 15 injured when a giant snowslide destroyed the bunkhouse, compressor houses and warehouse of the North Star mine, 12 miles northeast of Hailey, Idaho, at 3:30 o'clock Sunday morning.

The Dead.

Bodies of these men have been taken from the debris:

John Fleming, Elton G. Cooley, Jack Vaughn, James Peterline, Phil Welch, John Purnell, Frank P. Mangingo, Roy Judd, Sam Labarge.

The following six men are missing and all are believed to be buried beneath the slide:

Missing.

John Kistie, John Hearn, Jack McKelvey, Emmett P. Russell, W. R. Motley, W. S. Schmidt.

Injured.

On the list of those injured is Tom Jay, mine superintendent; A. E. Wood is in a precarious condition, with his back broken and hip fractured. Otherwise on the injured list are:

George Lee, Jack Lindsey, L. O. Beeson, Bert Judd, E. C. Jones, J. R. Carter and Pete Peterson.

Immediately upon receiving news of the disaster a special train conveying physicians and rescue workers was run from Hailey to Gimlet, from where the party was obliged to travel six miles to the mine in sleighs. It is reported that three of this number are dangerously injured. The bodies of the dead were left at the mine temporarily.

The disaster is the worst in the history of Wood River mining. Of the men killed Fleming, Labarge and Russell leave families living at Hailey. Vaughn, Kistie, McKelvey, Welch and Schmidt are Hailey men. Mangingo and Judd are at the mine.

TAKES OFF DANDRUFF, HAIR STOPS FALLING

Save your Hair! Get a 25 cent bottle of Danderine right now—Also stops itching scalp.

Thin, brittle, colorless and scraggy hair is mute evidence of a neglected scalp; of dandruff—that awful scurf.

There is nothing so destructive to the hair as dandruff. It robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and is very life; eventually producing a feverishness and itching of scalp, which if not remedied causes the hair roots to shrink, loosen and die—then the hair falls out fast. A little Danderine tonight—now—any time—will surely save your hair.

Get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store. You surely can have beautiful hair and lots of it if you will just try a little Danderine. Save your hair! Try it!

Tell people that complain about the high cost of certain goods that they should not put the blame upon the retailer, but give him a chance to show that he is selling at a very small profit and is always trying to give full value for every dollar.

WOMEN OF MIDDLE AGE

Mrs. Quinn's Experience Ought to Help You Over the Critical Period.

Lowell, Mass.—"For the last three years I have been troubled with the Change of Life and the bad feelings common at that time. I was in a very nervous condition, with headaches and pain a good deal of the time so I was unfit to do my work. A friend asked me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which I did, and it has helped me in every way. I am not nearly so nervous, no headache or pain. I must say that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the best remedy any sick woman can take."

Mrs. MARGARET QUINN, Rear 253 Worthen St., Lowell, Mass.

Other warning symptoms are a sense of suffocation, hot flashes, headaches, backaches, dizziness, palpitation of the heart, sparks before the eyes, irregularities, constipation, variable appetite, weakness, inquietude, and dizziness.

If you need special advice, write to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (Confidential), Lynn, Mass.

f. o. b. factory.

Any low price car can easily be called "the best," "equal to any other," or anything that over-enthusiastic salesman care to say.

But the man who pays his money and Real cantilever springs for the rough going of our mountains, the famous West-house electric starter and lighting self-generating system are but a few of the refinements that engineers and designers have said "are too much for the money and not necessary."

We want capable, energetic men to demonstrate this unusual car in their home territory. Here is an opportunity to engage in business—either all or part of time; it means profitable, worth-while employment. EAT LESS MEAT IF BACK HURTS

Take a glass of Salts to flush Kidneys if bladder bothers you.

Eating meat regularly eventually produces kidney trouble in some form or other, says a well-known authority, because the uric acid in meat excites the kidneys, they become over-worked; get sluggish; clog up and cause all sorts of distress, particularly backache and misery in the kidney region; rheumatic twinges, severe headaches, acid stomach, constipation, torpid liver, sleeplessness, bladder and urinary irritation.

The moment your back hurts or kidneys aren't acting right, or if bladder bothers you, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity; also to neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts cannot injure anyone; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to keep the kidneys and urinary organs clean, thus avoiding serious kidney disease.

10 CENT "CASCARETS" FOR LIVER AND BOWELS

Cure Sick Headache, Constipation, Biliousness, Sour Stomach, Bad Breath—Cathartic.

No odds how bad your liver, stomach or bowels; how much you are from constipation, indigestion, biliousness and sluggish bowels—you always get relief with Cascarets. They immediately cleanse and regulate the stomach, remove the sour, fermenting food and foul gases; take the excess bile from the liver and carry off the constipated waste matter and poison from the intestines and bowels. A 10-cent box from your druggist will keep your liver and bowels clean; stomach sweet and head clear for months. They work while you sleep.

Most Eminent Medical Authorities Endorse It.

Dr. Eberle and Dr. Braithwaite as well as Dr. Simon—all distinguished authorities—agree that whatever may be the disease, the urine seldom fails in furnishing us with a clue to the principles upon which it is to be treated, and accurate knowledge concerning the nature of disease can thus be obtained. If backache, scalding urine or frequent urination bother or distress you, or if uric acid in the blood has caused rheumatism, gout or sciatica or you suspect kidney or bladder trouble just write Dr. Pierce at the Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N.Y.; send a sample of urine and describe symptoms. You will receive free medical advice after Dr. Pierce's chemist has examined the urine—this will be carefully done without charge, and you will be under no obligation. Dr. Pierce during many years of experimentation has discovered a new remedy which he finds is thirty-seven times more powerful than lithia in removing uric acid from the system. If you are suffering from backache or the pains of rheumatism, go to your best druggist and ask for a 50-cent box of "Auric" put up by Dr. Pierce. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription for weak women and Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery for the blood have been favorably known for the past forty years and more. They are standard remedies to-day—as well as Doctor Pierce's Pleasant Pellets for the liver and bowels. You can get a large trial package for 10c. of any one of these remedies by writing Dr. Pierce.

Doctor Pierce's Pellets are unequalled as a Liver Pill. One tiny, Sugar-coated Pellet a Dose. Cure Sick Headache, Bilious Headache, Bilelessness, Constipation, Indigestion, Bilious Attacks, and all derangements of the Liver, Stomach and Bowels.

WOMEN CRY FOR FOOD

Great Demonstration in New York City Saturday

New York.—A crowd of approximately 1,000 persons, mostly women, who had attended a massmeeting in Madison Square to protest against high food prices, stormed the Waldorf-Astoria hotel late Saturday, shouting they were starving and demanding to see Governor Whitman. When informed the governor was at another hotel, they refused to believe it and started a demonstration, which necessitated the calling out of police reserves to disperse them. Several persons were injured in the disorder that followed. Four arrests were made.

German Casualties Reported.

London.—Casualties in the German army, exclusive of colonial troops, reported in the German casualty lists in the month of January, 1917, totaled 77,534 officers and men killed, wounded, prisoners or missing. The casualties bring the total of Germans killed and those who died of wounds or sickness to 988,329 and the total casualties since the war began to 4,087,692.

Hurrah! How's This

Cincinnati authority says come dry up and lift out with fingers.

Ouch! ? ? ? ! This kind of rough talk will be heard less here in town if people troubled with corns will follow the simple advice of this Cincinnati authority, who claims that a few drops of a drug called freezone when applied to a tender, aching corn or hardened callus stops soreness at once, and soon the corn or callus dries up and lifts rights off without pain.

He says freezone dries immediately and never inflames or even irritates the surrounding skin. A small bottle of freezone will cost very little at any drug store, but will positively remove every hard or soft corn or callus from one's feet. Millions of American women will welcome this announcement since the inauguration of the high heels. If your druggist doesn't have freezone tell him to order a small bottle for you.

The National Wholesale Grocers' Association has registered a complaint with the Federal Trade commission, wherein they charge the chain stores and the manufacturers who sell them food products in large quantities at lower prices than they do their regular customers, are engaged in unfair methods of competition.

The theory of the text book authorities on salesmanship is that no sale is consummated until the commodity is paid for. Applying this principle to the business of the average grocer, the bulk of his stock is consumed before it is sold, and too frequently it is the grocer and not the goods that are finally sold.

END STOMACH TROUBLE, GASES OR DYSPEPSIA

"Pape's Diapepsin" makes Sick, Sour, Gassy Stomachs surely feel fine in five minutes.

If what you just ate is souring on your stomach or lies like a lump of lead, refusing to digest, or you belch gas and eructate sour, undigested food, or have a feeling of dizziness, heartburn, fullness, nausea, bad taste in mouth and stomach-headache, you can get blessed relief in five minutes. Put an end to stomach trouble forever by getting a large fifty-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin from any drug store. You realize in five minutes how needless it is to suffer from indigestion, dyspepsia or any stomach disorder. It's the quickest, surest stomach doctor in the world. It's wonderful.—Adv.

BE PRETTY! TURN GRAY HAIR DARK

Try Grandmother's old Favorite Recipe of Sage Tea and Sulphur.

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is messy and troublesome. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this famous old recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, for about 50 cents.

Don't stay gray! Try it! No one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy and attractive.

Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite for those who desire dark hair and a youthful appearance. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

Mexico Makes Cartridges

Mexico City.—The cartridge making machinery purchased from Japan has been unloaded at Manzanillo from the steamer Kotchiro Maru and will soon be put in operation. Two hundred Japanese experts accompanied the shipments to set up the machinery and operate it. It is hoped by the government that this machinery will make Mexico independent of other countries for ammunition.

IF YOUR CHILD IS CROSS, FEVERISH, CONSTIPATED,

Look Mother! If tongue is coated, cleanse little bowels with "California Syrup of Figs."

Mothers can rest easy after giving "California Syrup of Figs," because in a few hours all the clogged-up waste, sour bile and fermenting food gently moves out of the bowels, and you have a well-playful child again.

Sick children needn't be coaxed to take this harmless "fruit laxative." Millions of mothers keep it handy because they know its action on the stomach, liver and bowels is prompt and sure.

Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which contains directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups.—Adv.

THE 80,000-TON BAT

Gigantic Fighting Craft Will Cost $50,000,000

Washington.—An 80,000-ton ship, mounting 50 18-inch guns, a speed of 25 knots an hour and ing $50,000,000 would be the largest war craft which the United States could employ, according to a report to congress in response to a request for specifications of the biggest fighting craft that could use the Panama canal and American harbors.

The report says that such a vessel would have a length of 975 feet, a beam of 108 feet, a secondary battery of 21 six-inch guns, four 21-inch torpedo tubes and a 12,000-mile radius of action.

"A single such vessel, however," it adds, "would not be of great value to the United States navy, as it would not be suited to act in unison with the other major units of our fleet. To develop the value of such a vessel it would be necessary to lay down not less than five."

The European war, the report says, has as yet brought no conclusive answer to the question of what types are most desirable and the general board is not prepared to recommend so radical a departure as the 80,000-ton ship would represent.

The $25,000,000 battleships asked for in the pending naval bill represent the greatest increase in size and power for battleship types in any single year, but they are to have a displacement of only 42,000 tons, main batteries of 12 16-inch guns and a speed of 23 knots.

Boise, Feb. 26.—The house of representatives Saturday passed the most important bill pending in the legislature when it approved without a negative vote the $1,000,000 bond issue act providing for the building of roads in the state. This act will make available for road construction in Idaho during the next two years a grand total of $2,- 750,000 raised by the counties, $335,000 from the federal post road act and $135,000 from the forest service. It means the most promising era of good road building in the history of Idaho.

Owing to the amount of winter crowded into the short month of February, we are wondering if

Boise, Feb. 26.—The state division resolution passed the house on final reading this morning by a vote of 36 to 25. A fil-luster was started by the Ada delegation, but it succeeded only in holding off the vote about an hour.

After passage the resolution was transmitted to the senate for approval. There is little liklihood that the upper house will defeat the measure, and Moscow is likely to have a state convention assembled at the University of Idaho in June to form a constitution for a new state.

in all the rest of the world combined. We are expending more multiplying laws, while we are losing in corresponding ratio the power of applying or enforcing laws.—Lewiston Tribune.

Women's Labor Laws

Senator Robinson of Arkansas and Representative Keating of Colorado have introduced identical bills to prohibit interstate shipment of goods made in whole or in part by women employed more than eight hours a day or more than six days a week.

The bills, drawn on the lines of the federal child labor law, would nationalize conditions for working women which now prevail in the District of Columbia, Arizona, California, Colorado and Washington. It would apply to women over 16 years of age.
Enforcement would be prescribed by a board to consist of the attorney general, the secretary of commerce and the secretary of labor.

Mrs. H. M. Smith entertained
Mrs. E. E. Holbrook and Mrs. M.
E. Hanby at dinner Tuesday.

Men Entertain

Dr. Laughbaum and Walter
Thomas entertained at Five Hundred in the former's apartments in the Stump building.
Elaborate refreshments were served in a most tasteful manner by the hosts.

Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. I. J. Odem, Mr. and Mrs.
Walter Cochran and the Misses
Ford and Kroh and Walter
Thomas and Dr. Laughbaum.

As Mr. and Mrs. Odem were going home they noticed a fire in the direction of Kendrick and telephoned to central to learn the particulars, whereupon an investigation followed and it was found that Dunkel's woodshed was on fire. Juliaetta is not so slow as some of her neighbors.

Why Pay the Peddler or Canvasser Twice These Prices?

You can save a good deal of money by buying your stock tonic at this store, instead of paying the peddler big, fancy prices for goods of unknown quality. Look at these prices for that old reliable and guaranteed stock conditioner and worm expeller—

DR. HESS STOCK TONIC

25-lb. pail costs $2.25

100-lb. drum costs $7.00

Remember, we have no peddler's wagon and horses' expenses to pay. That's why we can sell you Dr.
Hess Stock Tonic at these rock-bottom prices.

Here is another point, Mr. Farmer, we want to emphasize, that is: Dr. Hess Stock Tonic is highly concentrated; it goes farther, as the small dose quantity proves.
Dr. Hess Stock Tonic is to put your animals in a thriving condition, make the ailing ones healthy and expel the worms—otherwise you get your money back right here at our store. We also handle

Dr. Hess Dip and Disinfectant
Dr. Hess Poultry Pan-a-ce-a
Dr. Hess Instant Louse Killer
